Supreme Court, U.S.
FILED

No. 10-1114 OCT 26 2010

IN THE OFFICE OF THE CLERK

Supreme Court of the United States

RICARDO GLOVER,

Petitioner,

v.

GARY McCAUGHTRY, WARDEN,

Respondent.

On Petition For Writ Of Certiorari To The United States Court Of Appeals For The Seventh Circuit

PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI

RICARDO GLOVER
Layman (Pro Se) Litigant
Prisoner's ID #207606
Oshkosh Correctional Institution
Post Office Box 3310
Oshkosh, Wisconsin 54903-3310

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the interest in finality of litigation must yield where the interest of justice would make unfair the strict application of 28 U.S.C. § 2244 (b), where a subject- matter jurisdictional claim on an original 28 U.S.C. § 2254 appeal was misinterpreted or not interpreted by the courts of appeals.

2. Whether there can be a finality of a judgment of conviction rendered against a criminal defendant, where the criminal court lacked subject-matter jurisdiction to render the judgment of conviction against the criminal defendant.

3. Whether 28 U.S.C. § 2244 (b) restricts Courts of appeals' power or authority from revisiting their earlier decisions in a 28 U.S.C. § 2254 case and recalling the mandate thereof, where subject-matter jurisdictional claims were decided erroneously on the original appeal.

4. Whether this Court should liberally construe the present petition as a request under Gondeck v. Pan American World Airways, Inc., 382 U.S. 25 (1965), and grant relief accordingly, where Ricardo Glover stands alone in not receiving relief from a void judgment of conviction.

5. Whether this present petition should be liberally construe by this Court as a petition for a writs of mandamus and remanded to the Seventh Circuit with directions, or as an original request for a writ of habeas corpus.

6. Whether this Court should rescind all its previous orders denying reviews and issue Ricardo Glover a Writ of Habeas Corpus in the interest of justice, because extraordinary circumstances exists for his immediate release from a void judgment.

LIST OF PARTIES

All parties appear in the caption of the case on the cover page.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

QUESTIONS PRESENTED..... -i-

PARTIES TO THE PROCEEDINGS..... -ii-

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES..... -vi-

INTRODUCTION..... 1

ORDERS AND OPINIONS BELOW..... 4

JURISDICTION..... 5

CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY PROVISIONS INVOLVED..... 5

STATEMENT OF THE CASE..... 6

A. Statement Of The Underlying Facts Surrounding No Provision Of The Constitution Or Statute, Or Both, Gave The State Criminal Circuit Court Jurisdictional Power To Adjudicate At The Outset, [Initial Appearance], To Condemn And Enter A Judgment Against Ricardo Glover..... 6

B. The Proceedings In The Seventh Circuit..... 13

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE PETITION..... 24

A. THE SEVENTH CIRCUIT'S DECISION CONFLICTS WITH DECISIONS OF OTHER FEDERAL COURTS OF APPEALS, STATE COURTS AND THE SUPREME COURT..... 24

B. IMPORTANCE OF THE QUESTIONS PRESENTED..... 32

CONCLUSION..... 40

INDEX TO SEPARATE APPENDICES

Appendix-A Order, United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit denying Petition For The Court To Rescind Its' Original Order And Recall the mandate thereof Denying Habeas § 2254 Appeal Based On Extraordinary Circumstances And In The Interest Of Justice (Issued: August 23, 2010) (contained in the Separate Appendix To Petition For A Writ Of Certiorari).....1a

Appendix-B Petition For The Court To Rescind Its' Original Order And Recall the Mandate thereof Denying Habeas § 2254 Appeal Based On Extraordinary Circumstances And In The Interest Of Justice (Dated: July 21, 2010) (contained in the Separate Appendix To Petition For A Writ Of Certiorari) 2a-111a

Appendix-C Judgment, United States District Court Eastern District of Wisconsin(Entered: May 16, 1995) (contained in the Separate Appendix To Petition For A Writ Of Certiorari).....112a-113a

Appendix-D 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b) of the United States Code; 28 U.S.C. § 2254 of the United States Code; and Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution (contained in the Separate Appendix To Petition For A Writ Of Certiorari).....114a

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases Pages

Appleton Elec. Co. v. Graves Truck Line, Inc., 635 F.2d 603 (7th Cir. 1980).....17

Blakely v. Washington,
542 U.S. 296 (2004).....30

Bowles v. Russell,
551 U.S. 205 (2007).....35, 36, 37, 39

Calderon v. Thompson,
523 U.S. 538 (1998).....22, 26, 27, 28, 31

Castro v. United States,
540 U.S. 375 (2003).....23

City of Zanesvill v. Rouse,
2009 Ohio 2689, 2009 App. LEXIS 2278
(Ohio 2009).....35

Creek v. Village of Westhaven,
144 F.3d 441 (7th Cir. 1998).....21-22

Erickson v. Pardus,
551 U.S. 89 (2007).....23-24

Ex parte Bollman,
4 Cranch 75, 2 L.Ed. 554 (1807).....35, 39

Gondeck v. Pan American Would Airways, Inc.,
382 U.S. 25 (1965).....4, 22, 26, 27, 28, 31

IAL Aircraft Holding, Inc., v. Federal Aviation Administration,
216 F.3d 1304 (11th Cir. 2000).....28, 29

Jackson v. Consolidated Rail Corp.,
717 F.2d 1045 (7th Cir. 1983).....18

Lambert v. Buss,
489 F.3d 779 (7th Cir. 2007).....2, 22-23, 31

Leguizamo-Medina v. Gonzales,
493 F.3d 772 (7th Cir. 2007).....18

Moore v. Olson,
368 F.3d 757 (7th Cir. 2004).....18

Snow v. United States,
118 U.S. 346 (1886).....25, 27, 28, 31

State v. Aniton,
183 Wis.2d 125, 515 N.W.2d 302
(Wis.App. 1994).....33

State v. Dietzen,
164 Wis.2d 205, 474 N.W.2d 753
(Wis.App. 1991).....33

State v. Green,
48 Ohio App.3d 121, 548 N.E.2d 334
(Ohio 1988).....33, 37

State v. Miller,
47 Ohio App.3d 113, 547 N.E.2d 399
(Ohio 1988).....33

State v. Norris
2004 UT App. 267, 97 P.3d 732
(Utah App. 2004).....33

State v. Sharp,
2009 Ohio 1854, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS
1561 (Ohio App. 2009).....4, 33, 34, 35, 37

United States v. Bell,
70 F.3d 495 (7th Cir. 1995).....17

United States v. Booker,
543 U.S. 220 (2005).....30

United States v. Cotton,
535 U.S. 625 (2002).....37

United States v. Crawford,
422 F.3d 1145 (9th Cir. 2005).....30

United States v. Griffin,
303 U.S. 226 (1938).....37

United States v. Higgs,
504 F.3d 456 (3rd Cir. 2007).....49

United States v. Ohio Power Co.,
353 U.S. 98 (1957).....25, 26, 27, 28, 31

United States v. Smith,
80 F.3d 1188 (7th Cir. 1996).....19-21

United States v. Vega,
241 F.3d 910 (7th Cir. 2001).....18, 39

United States Constitutions

Fourteenth Amendment.....passim

United States Statutes

28 U.S.C. § 1254(1).....5

28 U.S.C. § 2244(b).....passim

28 U.S.C. § 2254.....passim

Wisconsin Constitution

Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution
.....9, 11, 35

Wisconsin Statutes

Wis. § 753.03..... .....passim

Wis. § 968.04(1)(a).....passim

Wis. § 968.01(2).....passim

Wis. § 969.02(1).....6, 12

Wis. § 969.03(1).....6, 12

Wis. § 970.01(2).....passim

Wis. § 970.02(1)(a).....passim

Wis. § 970.02(2).....6, 12

Other Authority

Ohio Rule 3 – Complaint.....32

No.

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

RICARDO GLOVER,

Petitioner,

v.

GARY McCAUGHTRY, WARDEN,

Respondent.

PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI

INTRODUCTION

Petitioner Ricardo Glover, a layman (pro se) litigant, prays that a writ of certiorari issue to review the Order of the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit ("Seventh Circuit") below, because the order is in conflict with the fundamental and threshold principles of subject-matter jurisdictional law as interpreted by other federal courts' of appeals, state courts' and this Court's decisions as well.

This case presents questions of fundamental and threshold importance to our criminal and habeas corpus system: what federal courts of appeals must do when they learn after rendering their decisions in a 28 U.S.C. § 2254 habeas corpus appeal and issuing the mandate thereof that they misinterpreted or made no interpretation at all regarding the scheme to a subject-matter jurisdictional claims in an original appeal, that relief should have been granted to the petitioner, instead of denied, because the state court lacked subject-matter jurisdiction to condemn and enter a judgment against the defendant [petitioner]. In this case, the Seventh Circuit was confronted with this situation, instead of revisiting its earlier decision to determine whether it had been rendered erroneously, despite the fact that subject-matter jurisdiction is a fundamental and threshold matter that is not limited by statutory requirements for re-opening the appeal, laches does not apply even if a party had been dilatory or lackadaisical in their efforts to overturn a void judgment, or a void judgment cannot be validated by consent, ratification, waiver, or estoppel. In so concluding, the Seventh Circuit explicitly rejected the approach of other federal courts of appeals and courts, which have recalled their mandates and vacated their decisions.

The Seventh Circuit has stated in another decision that 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b) restricts it from revisiting a 28 U.S.C. § 2254 case and any relief must come from the "Supreme Court." See Lambert v. Buss, 489 F.3d 779, 781 (7th Cir. 2007) (Ripple, J., concurrence). In this case, it was the error of the Seventh Circuit for failing to interpret and apply the subject-matter jurisdictional statutory and constitutional scheme for a trial court to acquire jurisdiction over criminal subject-matter and the person.

In this case below, a "Petition For The Court To Rescind Its' Original Order And Recall The Mandate Thereof Denying Habeas § 2254 Appeal Base On Extraordinary Circumstances And In The Interest Of Justice" was filed in the Seventh Circuit, since the Seventh Circuit made no statutory interpretation on the fundamental and threshold principles of subject-matter jurisdictional law in an original 28 U.S.C. § 2254 appeal regarding a petitioner's subject-matter jurisdictional claims (the scheme thereof), the petitioner asked the Seventh Circuit to revisit it's original 28 U.S.C. § 2254 decision and correct it.

The rule is regarding original subject-matter jurisdiction, that the criminal circuit court (trial court) lacked subject-matter jurisdiction at the outset in the absence of a sufficient formal accusation or the accusatory instrument itself (indictment, information or complaint), a criminal circuit court (trial court) acquires no jurisdiction whatsoever, and if it assumes jurisdiction, a trial and conviction are a nullity. The complaint is the jurisdictional instrument of a court. If the complaint is not properly filed, the convictions are void ab initio for want of subject matter jurisdiction, as the jurisdiction of the court was never invoked. A party is not barred from raising the issue at this stage in the proceedings, as subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived, and since, of those eligible to have the judgments dismissed against them because a court lacked subject-matter jurisdiction to render the judgment against those, see e.g. State v. Sharp, 2009 Ohio 1854, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561 (Ohio App. 2009).

Mr. Glover stands alone in not receiving relief, dismissal of his conviction because the state court that entered the judgment of conviction against him lacked subject-matter jurisdiction to do so, "the interest in finality of litigation must yield where the interests of justice would make unfair the strict application of" 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b). See Gondeck v. Pan American Would Airways, Inc., 382 U.S. 25, 26-27 (1965) (quoting United States v. Ohio Power Co., 353 U.S. 98, 99 (1957)).

The Supreme Court's intervention is necessary to resolve this clear split in the federal courts of appeals. In addition, where the judgment the petitioner is imprisoned and confined thereunder is void for want of jurisdiction by the state court that rendered it, because it lacked subject-matter jurisdiction, a manifest injustice has occurred and the petitioner is actually innocent.

ORDERS AND OPINIONS BELOW

The Seventh Circuit's order is unreported and is reprinted in the appendix as Appendix A,* see (Pet.

---

*Please note for reference of "Appendices," Appendix-A through Appendix-D, pages 1a through 114a are contained in the "Separate Appendix To Petition For Writ Of Certiorari" that accompanies this petition.

App. 1a). The original decision of the Seventh Circuit denying Mr. Glover's original 28 U.S.C. § 2254 appeal is unreported and is reprinted set forth in the appendix at (Pet. App. 98a-111a).

JURISDICTION

The Seventh Circuit issued its order on August 23, 2010. See (Pet. App. 1a). The jurisdiction of this Court is invoked under 28 U.S.C. § 1254(1).

CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY PROVISIONS INVOLVED

This case involves Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, which is set forth at (Pet. App. 114a).

The Fourteenth Amendment is enforced by its codifications, Wisconsin Statutes Sections, which provides:

Wisconsin Chapter 753.03, Circuit Court, Wis. § 753.03 – Jurisdiction of circuit courts, which is set forth at (Pet. App. 48a).

Wisconsin Chapter 968, Commencement Of Criminal Proceedings, Wis. § 968.01(2) – Complaint; and Wis. § 968.04(1)(a) – Warrant or summons on complaint, which is set forth at (Pet. App. 49a).

Wisconsin Chapter 969, Bail And Other Conditions Of Release, Wis. § 969.02(1) – Release of defendants charged with misdemeanors; and Wis. § 969.03(1) – Release of defendants charged with felonies, which is set forth at (Pet. App. 50a).

Wisconsin Chapter 970 Criminal Procedure – Preliminary Proceedings, Wis. § 970.01(2) – Initial appearance before a judge; and Wis. § 970.02(1)(a) – Duty of a judge at the initial appearance, which is set forth at (Pet. App. 51a).

Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution – Circuit court: jurisdiction, which is set forth at (Pet. App. 48a).

This case involves Title 28, Section 2244(b) of the United States Code – Finality of determination, which is set forth at (Pet. App. 114a).

This case involves Title 28, Section 2254 of the United States Code – State custody; Remedies in Federal courts, which is set forth at (Pet. App. 114a).

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

A. Statement Of The Underlying Facts Surrounding No Provision Of The Constitution Or

Statute, Or Both, Gave The State Criminal Circuit Court Jurisdictional Power To Adjudicate At The Outset, [Initial Appearance], To Condemn And Enter A Judgment Against Ricardo Glover.

In this case, Ricardo Glover had committed no crime; no one was sexually assaulted, hurt or killed by him. In addition, prior to this present case (the conviction, sentence and judgment of conviction) Mr. Glover had no felony conviction (not one); he had a good job, he worked everyday; he paid his taxes, he paid his bills and supported himself.

The facts of this case are not in dispute; they have been taken directly from the record and contained in the petition submitted to the Seventh Circuit, which is appended to this petition as Appendix-B (Pet. App. 29a-44a, 89a-97a), respectfully incorporated by reference herein. In addition, no court has ever concluded that the state criminal circuit court had subject-matter jurisdiction to adjudicate the case against Mr. Glover at the outset [initial appearance], to condemn him and enter a judgment of conviction against him.

A short statement of the underlying facts is submitted. On May 30, 1989, the Racine District Attorney's Office (prosecutor) forcefully brought Mr. Glover before a criminal circuit court for an initial appearance in chains and shackles from his warrantless arrest and detention by police pursuant to the Fourteenth Amendment's due process clause and equal protection clause, and the Fourteenth Amendment's codifications, Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) and 970.01(2) in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a), to: a) invoke the criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate a criminal case (charge or charges) filed against Mr. Glover therein the prosecutor's written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)); b) to invoke the criminal circuit court's personal jurisdictional power over the person of Mr. Glover from her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)); c) for the criminal circuit court to make a constitutional judicial determination does probable cause exist from the her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) for Mr. Glover warrantless arrest and detention; and, d) for the criminal circuit court to set bail on Mr. Glover from the charge or charges filed against him therein her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)).

However, here at the outset [initial appearance of May 30, 1989] of this case, see (Pet. App. 57a-65a) contrary to the Fourteenth Amendment's due process of law and equal protection of the law, and it's codification, Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a), and Wis. § 970.01(2) in conjunction with 970.02(1)(a), the prosecutor did not filed[1] her timely and written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) against Mr. Glover charging him with a crime in accordance with the prescribed time limitation period of Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) (Mr. Glover was arrested without a warrant on May 29, 1989 and is in police custody, no warrant shall be issued for him and the complaint charging him with an offense shall be filed now or at his initial appearance on the criminal circuit court by the prosecutor) and 970.01(2) (Mr. Glover was arrested without a warrant and today, May 30, 1989 he is brought before the initial appearance hearing court, the complaint shall be filed on the initial appearance hearing court against him now) in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a) (at this initial appearance hearing the court shall inform Mr. Glover of the charge against him and shall furnish him with a copy of the complaint which shall contain the possible penalties for the offenses set forth therein. In the case he is charged with a felony, the judge shall also inform him of the penalties for that felony which he is charged) to invoke the criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdictional power and personal jurisdictional power to adjudicate at the outset pursuant to Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03 in this case. See (Pet. App. 57a-65a).

---

[1] In addition, the prosecutor, an officer of the court stated to the criminal circuit court without filing her timely and written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) against Mr. Glover, stated that he "raped" S.B, see (Pet. App. 57a-65a). This was intentional misconduct on the part of the prosecuting attorney because she knew that Dr. Brown's report stated that S.B. was not raped

The Wisconsin Legislature made no provision therein Wis. § § § 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) or 970.02(1)(a), giving the criminal circuit court the and "injury free," see (Pet. App. 52a-53a) and Officer Cros' reported stated "that intercourse did not occur," see (Pet. App. 55a, -66a-70a).

---

power to allow the prosecutor time to extend the filing of her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. 968.01(2)) after Mr. Glover's initial appearance to invoke its subject-matter jurisdiction. Id.

Mr. Glover's constitutional rights to due process of law, equal protection of the law, fundamental fairness and non-deprivation of his liberty pursuant to the Fourteenth Amendment and his statutory rights, which are codifications of the Fourteenth Amendment, Wis. § § § 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) and 970.02(1)(a), were violated, when the criminal circuit court failed to dismiss the case against him for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction, adjudicating on unlawful "hypothetical jurisdiction," and setting an unconstitutional and unlawful bail on him of Ten Thousand Dollars, ($10,000.00), holding him for the nonexistent offense of "further investigation." Id.

Here, at the outset [initial appearance], the accusatory instrument (complaint) was not filed on the criminal circuit court in accordance with the prescribed time limitation period, the conviction and judgment thereof is void ab initio for want of subject matter jurisdiction, as the jurisdiction of the criminal circuit court was never invoked, as subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived. In addition, when the prosecutor failed to file her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument (complaint) against Mr. Glover at the outset of the criminal case [initial appearance], see (Pet. App. 57a-65a), and the prosecutor failed to clear a jurisdictional hurdle which can never be harmless or waived by a court.

The criminal circuit court lacked subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate at the outset [initial appearance] pursuant to Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03, because the written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) was not filed on it by the prosecutor in accordance with the prescribed time limitation period of Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) (Mr. Glover was arrested without a warrant on May 29, 1989 and is in police custody, no warrant shall be issued for him and the complaint charging him with an offense shall be filed now or at his initial appearance on the criminal circuit court by the prosecutor) and 970.01(2) (Mr. Glover was arrested without a warrant and on May 30, 1989 brought before an initial appearance hearing court, the complaint shall be filed on the initial appearance hearing court against him now) in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a) (at this initial appearance hearing the court shall inform Mr. Glover of the charge against him and shall furnish him with a copy of the complaint which shall contain the possible penalties for the offenses set forth therein. In the case he is charged with a felony, the judge shall also inform him of the penalties for that felony which he is charged).

The criminal circuit court at the outset of this criminal case [initial appearance] adjudicated thereinafter on unconstitutional and unlawful "hypothetical jurisdiction," no written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint", Wis. § 968.01(2)) was filed on it by the prosecutor to invoke it subject-matter jurisdictional power, see (Pet. App. 57a-65a).

No charge existed for the criminal circuit court to find probable cause for Mr. Glover's warrantless arrest and detention as it did not, nor to set a Ten Thousand Dollar, $10,000.00 bail on Mr. Glover as it did to hold him, because the prosecutor did not file her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) against Mr. Glover charging him with a crime, see (Pet. App. 57a-65a). The criminal circuit court could not set bail on Mr. Glover for a nonexistent offense, the law mandates that the criminal circuit court can only set bail for a charged offense therein a written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)). See Wis. § § § 969.02(1), 969.03(1) and 970.02(2).

On January 8, 1990, jury trial commenced, but ended in a plea. Mr. Glover pled not because he was guilty, but because he feared the criminal circuit court judge. See (Pet. App. 89a-97a).

Mr. Glover was actually innocent of the crimes and the record on its face demonstrates this as well, it is impossible for the alleged incident to have taken place at all. S.B.'s statements and testimony was incredible on its face, but the criminal circuit court judge forced Mr. Glover to plead in fear of him. Id.

The criminal circuit court lacking subject-matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction from the outset [initial appearance] of the criminal case, to adjudicate a criminal case against Mr. Glover, to condemn him and enter a judgment of conviction against him, see (Pet. App. 57a-65a), without jurisdiction being conferred on it by law, which amounted to no more than consent and hypothetical jurisdiction. Thus, the criminal circuit court, which sentenced Mr. Glover, was therefore without jurisdiction, and its judgment is void, see (Pet. App. 72a-74a). The judgment of conviction Mr. Glover is imprisoned and confined thereunder is absolutely void for want of jurisdiction in the court that pronounced it, see (Pet. App. 72a-74a, Judgment of Conviction, Case No. 89CF402), because such jurisdiction was absent at the beginning of the proceeding, see (Pet. App. 57a-65a, Initial Appearance Transcript, Case No. 89CF402).

B. The Proceedings In The Seventh Circuit

On July 26, 2010, Ricardo Glover, a layman (pro se) litigant filed a document entitled "Petition For The Court To Rescind Its' Original Order And Recall The Mandate Thereof Denying Habeas § 2254 Appeal Base On Extraordinary Circumstances And In The Interest Of Justice" in the Seventh Circuit. See (Pet. App. 2a-111a).

1. Mr. Glover's petition liberally construed demonstrated a need for the Seventh Circuit to revisit and correct it original decision denying habeas corpus relief to him and to recall the mandate thereof. Id. Because, the Seventh Circuit on Mr. Glover's original 28 U.S.C. § 2254 appeal failed to interpret the subject-matter jurisdictional scheme, see Wis. § § § § 968.01(2), 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) and 970.02(1)(a) for invoking a Wisconsin criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate a case at the outset, see Wis. § 753.03 and thereafter to enter a judgment of conviction. See (Pet. App. 111a). In addition, if the decision remained would work a manifest injustice. See (Pet. App. 2a-111a). Only the Wisconsin Legislature may determine a criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdiction in Wisconsin. The legislature created the criminal circuit courts by written law, and defined their subject-matter jurisdiction by written law, see Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03.

The Wisconsin Legislature set forth in Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a)[2] and 970.01(2),[3] in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a) [4] stringent time requirements that the

---

[2] Wisconsin Chapter 968, Commencement Of Criminal Proceedings, Wis. § 968.04(1)(a) – Warrant or summons on complaint, which provides in relevant part: "When an accused has been arrested without a warrant and is in custody ... no warrant shall be issued and the complaint shall be filed forthwith with a judge." (Emphasis added). See (Pet. App. 49a).

[3] Wisconsin Chapter 970 Criminal Procedure – Preliminary Proceedings, Wis. § 970.01(2) – Initial appearance before a judge, which provides: "When a person is arrested without a warrant and brought before a judge, a complaint shall be filed forthwith." (Emphasis added). See Pet. App. 51a).

[4] Wisconsin Chapter 970 Criminal Procedure – Preliminary Proceedings, Wis. § 970.02(1)(a) – Duty of a judge at the initial appearance, which provides: "At the initial appearance the judge shall inform the defendant: Of the charge against him and shall furnish the defendant with a copy of the complaint which shall contain the possible penalties for the offenses set forth therein. In the case of a felony, the judge shall also inform the defendant of the penalties for the felony with which the defendant is charged." (Emphasis added). See (Pet. App. 51a).

mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) shall be filed prior to or at Mr. Glover's initial appearance on the criminal circuit court by the prosecutor, from the warrantless and detention of his person, where he has been forcedly brought before the criminal circuit court by the prosecutor to invoke the criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate the proceedings pursuant to Wis. § 753.03. See (Pet. App. 57a-65a).

In addition, the Wisconsin Legislature made no provision therein Wis. § § § 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) or 970.02(1)(a), giving the criminal circuit court the power to grant the prosecutor time to extend the filing of her timely and written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. 968.01(2)) after Mr. Glover's initial appearance to invoke its subject-matter jurisdiction. Only the Wisconsin Legislature may determine a criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdiction. No action by the criminal circuit court can obtain subject-matter jurisdiction not given to it by the Legislature. The issue of subject-matter jurisdiction is not waivable by the parties. Thus, if subject-matter jurisdiction cannot be assumed or waived, any judgment by a criminal circuit court [trial court] is necessarily void. There is no action over time that can change a void judgment.

2. Mr. Glover's petition liberally construed to the Seventh Circuit represented that the Seventh Circuit made a grave error in deciding his original 28 U.S.C. § 2254 habeas corpus appeal, where he challenged that the state criminal circuit court lacked subject-matter jurisdiction to adjudicate a criminal case against him at the outset and thus, lacked subject-matter jurisdictional power to rendered a judgment of conviction against him. Mr. Glover presented to the Seventh Circuit that extraordinary circumstances existed and in the interest of justice based on the fundamental and threshold principles of subject-matter jurisdictional law dictated that it rescind its' original order and recall the mandate thereof denying his 28 U.S.C. § 2254 habeas corpus appeal. See (Pet. App. 2a-111a). Therein Mr. Glover's petition, he presented:

> a) That "he is actually innocent and his liberty was unconstitutionally and unlawfully taken from him";
>
> b) That the indictment, information or complaint is the jurisdictional accusatory instruments that invokes criminal circuit courts' subject-matter jurisdictional power or authority to adjudicate and then to enter a judgment;
>
> c) An enactment, what should have happened and what did not happened in this case, the case should have been dismissed against Mr. Glover from the outset;
>
> d) On-point cases to Mr. Glover's case, creating extraordinary circumstances and in the interest of > justice for the court to rescind its' original order and recall the mandate thereof; and,

>
> e) No provision of the constitution or statute, or both, gave the Criminal circuit court jurisdictional power to adjudicate at the outset, [initial appearance], to condemn and enter a judgment against Mr. Glover..

See (Pet. App. 2a-45a).

3. The Seventh Circuit stated on Mr. Glover's original 28 U.S.C. § 2254 habeas corpus appeal that he waived his right to challenge the subject-matter jurisdiction of the state criminal circuit court because he did not raise it in a timely manner. See (Pet. App. 111a). However, in Appleton Elec. Co. v. Graves Truck Line, Inc., 635 F.2d 603 (7th Cir. 1980), the Seventh Circuit held:

> "[T]hat a lack of jurisdiction cannot be waived by the parties. Insofar as our pronouncement from the bench implied that Graves had waived its jurisdictional defense by failing to raise it in a timely fashion, we now perceive that we were in error."

See Graves, 635 F.2d at 608. In addition, the Seventh Circuit has stated as this Court that nothing can waiver subject-matter jurisdiction. A jurisdictional defect is not waivable by a guilty or no contest plea.

See United States v. Bell, 70 F.3d 495, 496 (7th Cir. 1995). "[A]ny attempt to waive this jurisdictional issue in a plea agreement would have been ineffectual because a defendant cannot confer jurisdiction on a court by way of plea agreement." See United States v. Vega, 241 F.3d 910, 912 (7th Cir. 2001). In addition, the Seventh Circuit has also held:

> A "[d]efects in subject-matter jurisdiction, however, may not be waived or forfeited." See Moore v. Olson, 368 F.3d 757, 759 (7th Cir. 2004);; Leguizamo-Medina v. Gonzales, 493 F.3d 772, 774 (7th Cir. 2007), ("'Respondent declines to assert that the Court lacks jurisdiction over this issue,' as if subject-matter jurisdiction were something that litigants may waive or forfeit when they think it would be easier to decide the merits. That's not right. See Steel Co. v. Citizens for Better Environment, 523 U.S. 83, 118 S.Ct. 1003, 140 L.Ed.2d 210 (1998). Subject-matter jurisdiction always comes ahead of the merits."); see also Jackson v. Consolidated Rail Corp., 717 F.2d 1045, 1055 (7th Cir. 1983) (The corollary to the rule is that subject-matter jurisdiction otherwise lacking cannot be conferred by consent, collusion, laches, waiver, or estoppel.).

Thus, the Seventh Circuit's original decision was clearly erroneous and would work a manifest injustice because Mr. Glover cannot waive or forfeit his fundamental and threshold claim that the state criminal circuit court's lacked subject-matter jurisdiction at the outset of the case against him and to enter a judgment of conviction against him by failing to raise it in a timely fashion.

4. Next, in its original opinion, the Seventh Circuit cited United States v. Smith, 80 F.3d 1188 (7th Cir. 1996) as a case of authority to deny Mr. Glover's subject-matter jurisdictional claims. See (Pet. App. 111a). However, the Smith case did not apply to Mr. Glover's subject-matter jurisdictional challenges. The facts regarding Mr. Glover's subject-matter jurisdictional claims are set-forth above of this petition and in his petition to the Seventh Circuit. See (Pet. App. 2a-111a). The Smith case was very distinguishable from Mr. Glover's case, because therein Smith, the trial court (district court) had subject-matter jurisdiction over the case against Smith, which was not an issue, and had personal jurisdiction over Smith's person therein, nor was there a challenged to the district court's subject-matter jurisdiction or personal jurisdiction. The Smith case is outlined as follows:

> "The government filed a criminal complaint against Smith on April 13, 1993, charging that he had violated 18 U.S.C. § 659 by stealing the Foodland shipment. Smith was arrested on July 27, 1993, and he made an initial appearance before the district court on July 28, 1993. On August 3, 1993, United States District Judge Brian Duff of the Northern District of Illinois revoked Smith's supervised release from a conviction for conspiring to steal an interstate shipment of copper in 1991. Judge Duff revoked Smith's supervised release, in part, because of Smith's arrest for the March 23, theft, and he sentenced Smith to one year of imprisonment. On August 5, 1993, the district court granted the government's motion, which was agreed to by Smith's counsel, to dismiss the criminal complaint with prejudice.

On March 18, 1994, a grand jury indicted Smith for the March 23, 1993, theft of the Born's Transfer truck and trailer and the Foodland-bound cargo ... the grand jury returned a superseding indictment on September 14, 1994, which, in addition to the original two counts, charged Smith with one count of interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle in violation of 18 U.S.C.A. § 2312. The district court denied Smith's motion to dismiss the indictment for unnecessary delay after finding that Smith had failed to make the required showing of prejudice.

Initially, Smith argues that the district court erred in denying his motion to dismiss the indictment for unnecessary delay. Smith based his motion to dismiss on the argument that the government's requested dismissal of > the complaint following the revocation of his supervised release, and subsequent re-indictment immediately prior to the end of his revocation sentence, violated his right to due process by denying him the opportunity to 'resolve' the revocation proceeding and the Foodland theft charges simultaneously. Smith alleges he suffered prejudice because, as a result of the delay, he was precluded from serving the revocation sentence and the sentence for the Foodland theft concurrently."

See Smith, 80 F.3d at 1190-1191, 1191. The Smith case was very distinguishable from Mr. Glover's case. In addition, the defendant in Smith did not raise a subject-matter or personal jurisdictional challenges as Mr. Glover raised. Id. The original decision of the Seventh Circuit was clearly erroneous and would work a manifest injustice if it remains. See (Pet. App. 111a).

5. The Seventh Circuit has held that appeals are decided erroneously by a panel thereof, and must later be withdrawn to prevent a manifest injustice. The Seventh Circuit has "long held that 'matters decided on appeal became the law of the case to be followed ... on second appeal, in the appellate court, unless there is plain error of the law in the original decision.'" See Creek v. Village of Westhaven, 144 F.3d 441, 446 (7th Cir. 1998) (quoting Appleton Electric Co. v. Graves Truck Line, Inc., 635 F.2d 603, 607 (7th Cir. 1980)). The Seventh Circuit said:

> "The demands of justice require that [the appellate court] not follow an earlier ruling 'where the law as announced is clearly erroneous, and establishes a practice which is contrary to the best interests of society, and works a manifest injustice in the particular case.'"... "[T]his court has, on a limited number of occasions, reconsidered a previous adjudication and has concluded that our former ruling was erroneous."

See Creek, 144 F.3d at 446. Mr. Glover's petition, see (Pet. App. 2a-111a), liberally construed represented a request that "the interests of justice would make unfair the strict application of" 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b). See Gondeck v. Pan American Would Airways, Inc., 382 U.S. 25, 27 (1965) (quoting United States v. Ohio Power Co., 353 U.S. 98, 99 (1957)).

6. On August 23, 2010, the Seventh Circuit denied Mr. Glover's petition, recharacterizing the petition, stating that it "constitutes a second or successive collateral attack that may be commenced only if the criteria of 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b) have been satisfied, Calderon v. Thompson, 523 U.S. 538, 553-54 (1998), which is not here argued. Indeed, by iterating the claim previously presented, authorization would be barred by § 2244(b)(1)." See (Pet. App. 1a). The Seventh Circuit has stated in another decision that 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b) restricts it from revisiting a 28 U.S.C. § 2254 case and any relief must come from the "Supreme Court." See Lambert

v. Buss, 489 F.3d 779, 781 (7th Cir. 2007) (Ripple, J., concurrence). However, in this case, it was the error of Seventh Circuit for failing to interpret and apply the subject-matter jurisdictional statutory and constitutional scheme for a trial court to acquire jurisdiction over criminal subject-matter and the person. See (Pet. App. 111a).

In addition, the Seventh Circuit's unauthorized recharacterization of Mr. Glover's petition is unlike "liberal construction" because it required the Seventh Circuit to "deliberately" override Mr. Glover's, who is a layman (pro se) litigant's choice of procedural vehicle for his claims, this is as equal to Mr. Glover's as to his counterparts, federal litigants. See Castro v. United States, 540 U.S. 375, 386 (2003) (Scalia, J., concurring in part and concurring in judgment) (Recharacterization ... requires a court deliberately to override the pro se litigant's choice of procedural vehicle for his claim).

Mr. Glover was without the assistance of counsel in the Seventh Circuit, in Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89 (2007), this Court stated where a layman (pro se) litigant as Mr. Glover brings a pleading to a court and is unaided by counsel, he is entitled to liberal construction of his pleadings, not recharacterization, the Court said:

> "The Court of Appeals' departure from the liberal pleadings standard set forth by Rule 8(a)(2) is even more pronounced in this particular case because. Petitioner has been > proceeding, from the litigation's outset, without counsel. A document filed pro se is 'to be liberally construed,' Estelle, 429 U.S., at 106, 97 S. Ct. 285, 50 L.Ed.2d 251, and 'a pro se complaint, however inactfully pleaded, must be held to less stringent standard than formal pleadings drafted by lawyers,' ibid. (internal quotation marks omitted). Cf. Federal Rules Civil Procedure 8(f)('All pleadings shall be so construed as to do substantial justice')."

See 551 U.S. at 94. This petition follows.

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE PETITIONS

Mr. Glover, a layman (pro se) litigant asks the Court to liberally construe this petition, not limiting review to the questions presented.

A. THE SEVENTH CIRCUIT'S DECISION CONFLICTS WITH DECISIONS OF OTHER FEDERAL COURTS OF APPEALS, STATE COURTS AND THE SUPREME COURT.

By refusing to comply with the fundamental and threshold principles of subject-matter jurisdictional law to rescind its' original order and recall the mandate thereof denying habeas § 2254 appeal base on extraordinary circumstances and in the interest of justice, see (Pet. App. 1a, 2a-111a), the Seventh Circuit stands in conflict with all other federal courts of appeals and this Court. In addition, the order of the Seventh Circuit below creates several conflicts among courts of appeals and state courts, because there can be no finality of judgments entered, where the judgments was entered by courts that lacked subject-matter jurisdictional power or authority to enter them, and, the interest in finality of litigation must yield where the interest of justice would make unfair the strict application of 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b), where a subject-matter jurisdiction claim was misinterpreted or not interpreted by the courts of appeals in an original 28 U.S.C. § 2254 appeal. Certiorari review is warranted to resolve this split in the federal courts of appeals and other courts.

Before the existence of courts of appeals, this Court recalled its' mandate based on a jurisdiction issue. See Snow v. United States, 118 U.S. 346 (1886). In Snow, the Court was alerted for the first time that it had predicated its assertion of jurisdiction in an earlier decision on an erroneous interpretation of a statute. See 118 U.S. at 354. Finding that "the want of jurisdiction in it is clear" the Court "decided to vacate [the] judgment, and recall the mandate, and dismiss the writ of error for want of jurisdiction." Id. at 354, 6 S.Ct. at 1064.

In United States v. Ohio Power Co., 353 U.S. 98 (1957), this Court stated that it has "consistently ruled that the interest in finality of litigation must yield where the interests of justice would make unfair the strict application of our rules. This policy finds expression in the manner in which we have exercised our power over our own judgments, both in civil and criminal cases." Id at 99 (cases cited).

Thereafter Ohio Power Co., in Gondeck v. Pan American World Airways, Inc., 382 U.S. 25 (1965), there two plaintiffs brought wrongful death action against the same defendant for death raising from the same accident. The United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit denied recovery to the first plaintiff under the longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act; this Court denied certiorari and a petition for rehearing. Id at 26. The United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit's subsequently upheld an award to the second plaintiff, explicitly disagreeing with the Fifth Circuit. In an unrelated case, this Court later adopted the Fourth Circuit's approach. This Court noted that its adoption of the Fourth Circuit's approach left Gondeck as the only victim who did not receive compensation from the accident, and cited "the established doctrine that 'the interest in finality of litigation must yield where the interests of justice would make unfair the strict application of our rules.'" Id. at 26-27 (quoting United State v. Ohio Power Co., 353 U.S. 98, 99, 1L. Ed. 2d 683, 685, 77 S. Ct. 652 (1957)). Accordingly, this Court vacated its earlier denial of certiorari and reversed the judgment of the Fifth Circuit.

In Calderon v. Thompson, 523 U.S. 538 (1998), this Court acknowledged that the courts of appeals have the authority to recall their mandates and may only exercise that power "in extraordinary circumstances" due to "'the profound interest in repose' attaching to the mandate." See Calderon, 523 U.S. at 550 (quoting 16 C. Wright, A. Miller, E. Cooper, Federal Practice and Procedure § 3938 p.712 (2d ed. 1996)). "The sparing use of the power demonstrates it is one of last resort, to be held in reserve against grave, unforeseen contingencies." See Calderon, 523 U.S. at 550. Calderon recognized three exceptions that might be available to allow a recall of the mandate in a 28 U.S.C. § 2254 habeas case, where the requirements of 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b) are not met: (1) when necessary to correct a clerical error; (2) when the prior habeas judgment was obtained by fraud on the part of the state; and (3) when a mandate is stayed under Fed. R. App. P. 41." See Calderon, 523 U.S. at 557.

This Court did not explicitly state in either Snow, supra, Ohio Power Co., supra, Gondeck, supra or Calderon, supra, that a subject-matter jurisdictional claim misinterpreted or not interpreted at all constitutes as extraordinary circumstances and in the interest of justice for recalling the judgments or mandates of the courts of appeals. However, Snow, Ohio Power Co., Gondeck, or Calderon, none of which was discussed by the Seventh Circuit below, that is extraordinary circumstances and in the interest of justice, the Seventh Circuit refused to liberally construe Mr. Glover's petition for its sole intended purpose. See (Pet. App. 1a, 2a-111a).

A decision to recall a mandate or judgment must of necessity include a balance of competing interests. However, the interest of justice outweighs the interest of bringing litigations to an end and courts should recall their mandates for this reason. Although, the judgment of conviction, see (Pet. App. 72a-74a), and the habeas corpus judgment, see (Pet. App. 112a-113a) and the mandates or judgments thereof in this case was issued years ago, there was no reason why they may not be recalled by the Seventh Circuit to prevent a manifest injustice. Accordingly, the Seventh Circuit's order, see (Pet. App. 1a) conflicts with the implicit holding of Snow, Ohio Power Co., Gondeck, or Calderon.

The Order of the Seventh Circuit below also creates a conflict among the courts of appeals with regards to whether extraordinary circumstances exists and in the interest of justice to recall its mandate and rescind its original decision, based on an misinterpretation or no interpretation regarding a subject-matter jurisdictional claim. In IAL Aircraft Holding, Inc., v. Federal Aviation Administration, 216 F.3d 1304 (11th Cir. 2000), [decided after Snow, Ohio Power Co., Gondeck, or Calderon], the Eleventh Circuit was asked to recall its mandate, which required it to revisit its' earlier decision, which it stated was a part of it's' "continuing duty to review [the] jurisdiction of an appeal at any point in the appellate process." Id. at 1305 (quoting National Solid Waste Management Assoc. v. Alabama Dep't of Envtl. Management, 924 F.2d 1001, 1002 (11th Cir. 1991)). The Eleventh Circuit based its' decision to recall its' mandate and vacate its' opinion on this Court's decision in Snow, supra, the Eleventh Circuit stated:

> "Although it is rather unusual for a court to learn, after its mandate issues, that its prior decision lacked a jurisdictional basis, the few courts confronting this issue uniformly have vacated their prior decision. In Snow v.

> United States, the Supreme Court was alerted for the first time that it had predicated its assertion of jurisdiction in an earlier decision on an erroneous interpretation of a statute. See 118 U.S. 346, 354, 6 S.Ct. 1059, 1064, 30 L.Ed. 207 (1886). Finding that 'the want of jurisdiction in I is clear' the Court 'decided to vacate [the] judgment, and recall the mandate, and dismiss the writ of error for want of jurisdiction.' Id. at 354, 6 S.Ct. at 1064."

See FAA, 216 F.3d at 1306. The Eleventh Circuit concluded that,

> "Even though we lacked jurisdiction at the time we issued our earlier opinion, IAL nevertheless contends this court may not vacate a decision for mootness after the mandate issues absent extraordinary circumstances. See Calderon v. Thompson, 523 U.S. 538, 550, 118 S.Ct. 1489, 1498, 140 L.Ed.2d 728 (1998). Jurisdiction is a threshold question, however, and this court was without jurisdiction when the original decision and mandate issued. Under these circumstances, we are compelled to recall the mandate and vacate our earlier decision."

Id. 1306-1307. The Eleventh Circuit found that "[j]urisdiction is a threshold question," thus compelled it to recall its mandate and vacate its opinion.

In United States v. Crawford, 422 F.3d 1145 (9th Cir. 2005), the Ninth Circuit recalled its' mandate, vacated the opinion and remanded the case back to the district court. The Ninth Circuit stated in Crawford that "[t]his case involves 'extraordinary circumstances" sufficient to justify our recall of the mandate. Id. at 1146 (citing Calderon v. Thompson, 523 U.S. 538, 550, 140 L.Ed.2d 728. 118 S.Ct. 1489)). In Crawford, the Ninth Circuit stated that the Supreme Court's decision in United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220 (2005) was not, by itself, sufficient to justify recall of the cases finalized before Booker was filed.

However, the Ninth Circuit in Crawford, recalled its' mandate based on a pre-Booker sentence to allow the district court to re-sentence the defendant under Booker. The Ninth Circuit based its' decision on the existence of two "extraordinary circumstances": (1) that the sentencing judge had expressed about the sentence required under the mandatory Guidelines; and (2) that the Supreme Court's decision in Blakely v. Washington, 542 U.S. 296 (2004), which "foreshadowed" its holding in Booker, was rendered before its mandate issued in Crawford. See Crawford, 422 F.3d at 1154-46.

In the Order below, the Seventh Circuit refused to determine whether the fundamental and threshold principles of subject-matter jurisdictional law, created extraordinary circumstances and in the interest of justice to compel it to recall its mandate and vacate its' original opinions in cases, where it had failed to interpret a subject-matter jurisdictional claim in an original 28 U.S.C. 2254 appeal. See (Pet. App. 1a, 111a). However, other courts have found an extraordinary circumstance exists and in the interest of justice to recall their mandates and vacate their opinions, and the Seventh Circuit refuses to address the issue. The Seventh Circuit has stated in another case that 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b) restricts it from revisiting a 28 U.S.C. § 2254 case and any relief must come from the "Supreme Court." See Lambert v. Buss, 489 F.3d 779, 781 (7th Cir. 2007) (Ripple, J., concurrence). However, in this case, it was the error of the Seventh Circuit for failing to interpret and apply the subject-matter jurisdictional statutory and constitutional scheme for a trial court to acquire jurisdiction over criminal subject-matter and personal jurisdiction over the person. See (Pet. App. 1a, 111a).

The Snow case was decided in 1886, the Ohio Power Co. case was decided in 1957, the Gondeck case was decided in 1965 and the Calderon case was decided in 1998, therefore, the issue is therefore now ripe for this Court's consideration.

This case provides a perfect vehicle to address. whether "an extraordinary circumstance" exists and "the interest in finality of litigation must yield where the interests of justice would make unfair the strict application of" 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b) in a 28 U.S.C. § 2254 habeas cases, based on fundamental and threshold principles of subject-matter jurisdictional law, where the courts of appeals made a misinterpretation or no interpretation at all in an original 28 U.S.C. § 2254 opinion regarding the petitioners' subject-matter jurisdictional claims and when it is brought to the courts of appeals attention after their mandate had issued in an extraordinary request for relief to prevent an "manifest injustice." This Court should grant certiorari review to prevent a manifest injustice.

B. IMPORTANCE OF THE QUESTIONS PRESENTED

The States of Wisconsin and Ohio, and other jurisdictions have the identical commencement of criminal proceedings. In Wisconsin, Chapter 968 – "COMMENCEMENT OF CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS," mandates that the accusatory instrument, criminal complaint shall be filed to commence criminal proceedings against the accused in the criminal circuit courts. See Wis. § 968.01(2) complaint provides: "The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged." The Ohio criminal courts have the identical commencement of criminal proceedings against the accused, to commence criminal proceedings against the accused, mandating that a criminal complaint shall be filed. See Ohio Criminal Rule 3 ("The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged.").

A Wisconsin criminal "circuit court's subject-matter jurisdiction attaches when the complaint is filed ... the circuit court lacks criminal subject-matter jurisdiction only where the complaint does not charge an offense known to law." See Aniton, 183 Wis.2d at 129, 515 N.W.2d at 303.[6] "[A] defect that deprives a court of subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived by an accused. The absence of the criminal complaint cannot be waived by a plea of no contest or even guilty, since any conviction resulting from an invalid complaint is a nullity." See e.g., State v. Green, 48 Ohio App.3d 121, 548 N.E.2d 334 (Ohio 1988); State v. Miller, 47 Ohio App.3d 113, 114, 547 N.E.2d 399, 401 (Ohio 1988) (In the absence of a sufficient formal accusation, a court acquires no jurisdiction whatsoever, and if it assumes jurisdiction, a trial and conviction are a nullity ... the complaint is the jurisdictional instrument of the municipal court.").

The State of Ohio, uses a criminal complaint as its initial charging instrument as Wisconsin. See e.g., State v. Sharp, 2009 Ohio 1854, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561 (Ohio App. 2009), where the Ohio Court of Appeals stated: "In the absence of a sufficient formal accusation, a Court acquires no jurisdiction whatsoever, and if it assumes jurisdiction, a trial and conviction are a nullity ... The complaint is the jurisdictional instrument of the municipal court." See Sharp, 2009 Ohio 1854, ¶14, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561, 5. "A court's subject matter jurisdiction is invoked by the filing of a complaint." See Id. "The filing of a valid complaint is therefore a necessary prerequisite to a court's acquiring jurisdiction." 2009 Ohio 1854, ¶14, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561, 5-6. "We review the determination of subject matter jurisdiction de novo, without any deference to the trial court." See Sharp, 2009 Ohio 1854, ¶14, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561, 6. The Sharp court further stated that,

---

[6] Subject-matter jurisdiction is not waivable, and may be raised despite guilty plea. See e.g. State v. Aniton, 183 Wis.2d 125, 129, 515 N.W.2d 302, 303 (1994). "The general rule applicable in criminal proceedings ... is that by pleading guilty, the defendant ... waives all nonjurisdictional defects." See e.g. State v. Norris, 2004 UT App. 267, ¶4, 97 P.3d 732, 735-736 (Utah App. 2004). A plea of guilty or no contest "waives all nonjurisdictional defects and defenses," and that "'[j]urisdictional defects' can involve the court's personal jurisdiction over the person of the defendant or the court's jurisdiction over the subject matter of the proceeding." See e.g. State v. Dietzen, 164 Wis.2d 205, 210, 474 N.W.2d 753, 755 (Wis.App. 1991). "Subject matter jurisdiction is conferred on the court by law; it cannot be conferred by consent, nor can it be waived." See Dietzen, 164 Wis.2d at 210-211, 474 N.W.2d at 755.

> "[T]he defense of subject-matter jurisdiction can never be waived ... The absence of the criminal complaint cannot be waived by a plea of no contest or even guilty, since any conviction resulting from an invalid complaint is a nullity. State v. Bishop, (1993), Clark App. No. 3070, 1993 Ohio App. LEXIS 5799, unreported. The question of subject matter jurisdiction is so basic that it can be raised at any stage before the trial court or any appellate court, or even collaterally in subsequent and separate proceedings.
>
> * * * * * *
>
> [I]f the complaint were not properly filed, the convictions are void ab initio > for want of subject matter jurisdiction, as the jurisdiction of the Mount Vernon Municipal Court was never invoked. Further, appellant is not barred from raising the issue at this stage in the proceedings, as subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived."

See Sharp, 2009 Ohio 1854, ¶15 & ¶17, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561, 6, 7; City of Zanesvill v. Rouse, 2009 Ohio 2689, 2009 App. LEXIS 2278 (Ohio 2009).

Wisconsin criminal circuit courts were created by written law, and their subject-matter jurisdiction is defined by written law, see Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03. Only the Wisconsin Legislature may determine a criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdiction. The criminal circuit courts, "cannot transcend that jurisdiction. It is unnecessary to state the reasoning on which the opinion is found, because it has been repeatedly given by this Court; and with decisions hereto rendered on this point, no member of the bench has, even for an instant, been dissatisfied." See Ex parte Bollman, 4 Cranch 75, 93, 2 L.Ed. 554 (1807). Two-hundred years later, in 2007, this Court in Bowles v. Russell, 551 U.S. 205, 214 (2007), enforced its Bollman decision when it held that courts have "no authority to create equitable exceptions to jurisdictional requirements." "[O]nly Congress may determine a lower federal court's subject-matter jurisdiction," the critical inquiry in determining whether a particular timing rule is jurisdictional is whether it is set forth in a statute. See Bowles, 551

U.S. at 211 (internal citations omitted). This Court stated in Bowles,

> In Bowles, this Court held that "the taking of an appeal within the prescribed time is 'mandatory and jurisdictional.'" (citation omitted). "Indeed, even prior to the creation of the circuit courts of appeals, [the Supreme] Court regarded statutory limitations on the timing of appeals as limitations on its own jurisdiction" Id. 551 U.S. at 209-210.
>
> In Bowles, the petitioner had been denied a writ of habeas corpus by the Northern District of Ohio, but was told by the district court that he had seventeen days to file a notice of appeal. Id. 551 U.S. at 206-208. Contrary to the district court's instructions, however, the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure only provided a period of fourteen days to file a notice of appeal. Id. Thus, when the petitioner filed his notice of appeal on the sixteenth day following the district court's decision, the Sixth Circuit held that it lacked jurisdiction to hear the appeal, and the Supreme Court affirmed. Id.
>
> In its opinion, this Court stated that "[t]oday we make clear that the timely filing of a notice of appeal in a civil case is a jurisdictional requirement." Id. 551 U.S. at 214. Furthermore, this Court stated that "[i]f rigorous rules like the one applied today are though to be inequitable, Congress may authorize court to promulgate rules that excuse compliance with the statutory time limits." See Bowles, 551 U.S. at 214.

In Bowles, this Court held that a "mandatory and jurisdictional" instrument (notice of appeal) cannot be filed outside its prescribed mandatory time limitation period, no delays nor extension will suffice, a court does not have subject-matter jurisdiction beyond the mandatory prescribed time limitation period. This Court stated in Bowles, that "[j]urisdictional treatment of statutory time limits makes good sense. Within constitutional bounds," See id. 551 U.S. at 212.

There is no difference in this present case from the Green, supra, case and Sharp, supra, case and this Court's decision in Bowles.[7] In this case, on May [7] The accusatory instrument (complaint) was not filed on the criminal circuit court in accordance with the prescribed time limitation period, the conviction and judgment entered against Mr. Glover is therefore void ab initio for want of subject matter jurisdiction, as the jurisdiction of the criminal circuit court was never invoked, as subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived. See United States v. Griffin, 303 U.S. 226, 229 (1938); see also United States v. Cotton, 535 U.S. 625, 630 (2002).

30, 1989, at Mr. Glover's initial appearance hearing, see (Pet. App. 57a-65a), the prosecutor informed the criminal circuit court that she did not filed her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. 968.01(2)) against Mr. Glover in accordance with the prescribed time limitation period, the prosecutor was informed by the criminal circuit court that she could file her accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. 968.01(2)) against Mr. Glover on the next day, May 31, 1989, after his initial appearance hearing. Contrary to the criminal circuit court's instructions, however, the Wisconsin Rules of Criminal Procedure – Chapter 968, commencement of criminal proceedings, mandated that the written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) shall be filed by the prosecutor against Mr. Glover at his initial appearance hearing on the court, which was held on May 30, 1989, from the warrantless arrest and detention of his person in according to the time limitation period provided by Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) (Mr. Glover was arrested without a warrant on May 29, 1989 and was in police custody, no warrant shall be issued for him and the complaint charging him with an offense shall be filed now or at his initial appearance on the criminal circuit court by the prosecutor) and 970.01(2) (Mr. Glover was arrested without a warrant and on May 30, 1989 brought before an initial appearance hearing court, the complaint shall be filed on the initial appearance hearing court against him prior to or now), in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a) (at this initial appearance hearing the court shall inform Mr. Glover of the charge against him and shall furnish him with a copy of the complaint which shall contain the possible penalties for the offenses set forth therein. In the case he is charged with a felony, the judge shall also inform him of the penalties for that felony which he is charged) to invoke the criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate pursuant Wis. § 753.03.

Thus, when the prosecutor filed her accusatory instrument ("complaint') the next day (May 31, 1989) outside of the mandatory and jurisdictional time limitation period, after Mr. Glover's initial appearance held on May 30, 1989, following the criminal circuit court's decision, the criminal circuit court lacked jurisdiction to hear the criminal action against Mr. Glover on May 31, 1989. The criminal circuit court has "no authority to create equitable exceptions to jurisdictional requirements," see Bowles, 551 U.S. at 214, nor to "transcend that jurisdiction." See Bollman, 4 Cranch at 93.

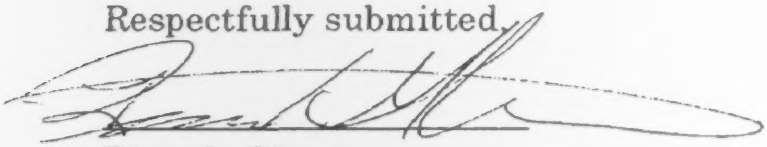
Mr. Glover stands alone with receiving no relief from a void judgment of conviction that binds him to the present unconstitutional and unlawful imprisonment and confinement, where all other petitioners have received the correct evaluation, an independent review, followed by the statutory and constitutional interpretation of their subject-matter jurisdictional claims. See Vega, 241 F.3d at 911-912; United States v. Higgs, 504 F.3d 456, 463-464 (3rd Cir. 2007). This Court should grant certiorari to prevent a manifest injustice.

CONCLUSION

The petition for a writ of certiorari should be granted, or at a minimum remanded to the Seventh Circuit.

Dated this 3rd day of January, 2011.

Respectfully submitted,



Ricardo Glover,
Prisoner's ID No 207606
Layman (Pro Se) Litigant
Oshkosh Correctional Inst.
Post Office Box 3310
Oshkosh, WI 54903-3310

Ct 3:	940.01 &	F	5-29/89
Att. 1st Deg.	939.32
Int. Homicde

Committed in this County; and

On Feb. 22, 1990, the Court inquired of the defendant why sentence should not be pronounced, and no sufficient grounds to the contrary being shown or appearing to the Court, the Court having accorded the district attorney, defense counsel and the defendant an opportunity to address the Court regarding sentence; and upon all the evidence, records and proceedings, the Court pronounced judgment as follows:

IT IS ADJUDGED that the defendant on 2-22-90 was convicted as found guilty, and is sentenced to the Wisconsin State Prisons for an indeterminate term of not more that Ct. 1: 20 years; Ct 2: 20 years to run consecutive to ct 1; Ct 3: 5 years to run consecutive to ct 2.

IT IS DETERMINED AND ORDERED that the record requires court-imposed conditions as follows:
☐ None ☒ As ordered below:
That the defendant has the ability to pay within that the amounts ordered herein. Should his/her financial condition change s/he shall forthwith petition this Court for reconsideration of such condition.

Mandatory ☒ Felony 3. (# counts) @ $30.00 Amount $150.00; Victim/Witness Surcharge ☐ Misdemeanor

_____. (# counts) @ $20.00
Amount_____: Sec. 973.045 Wis. Stats.)
Paid ☐ Yes Amount $_____; ☐ No.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the defendant shall pay surcharges pursuant to Sec. 973.09(1)(b), Wis. Stats.:

IT IS ADJUDGED that 264 days sentence credit are due pursuant to Sec. 93.155, Wis. Stats.

IT IS ORDERED that the Clerk deliver a duplicate original of this Judgment to the Sheriff, and that the Sheriff shall forthwith deliver the defendant and a copy of this Judgment to the Dodge Correctional Institution (Reception Center) Located in the City of Waupun.

(affix seal)

BY ORDER OF THE COURT. Signature of Judge, Deputy or Clerk of Court. "s/"
Name of Judge Dennis J. Berry — Date Signed Feb. 22, 1990
Name of Defense Attorney R. Sfasciotti — Name of District Attorney L. Weber

2002 WI App. 56, *; 251 Wis. 2d 482
640 N.W. 2d 565; Wisc. App.LEXIS 54,

State of Wisconsin, Plaintiff-Respondent, v.
Christopher L. Russell, Defendant-Appellant.

No. 01-1291-CR

COURT OF APPEALS OF WISCONSIN, DISTRICT THREE

2002 WI App 56; 251 Wis. 2d 482; 640 N/W. 2d 565;
2002 Wisc. App LEXIS 54

January 23, 2002 decided
January 23, 2002, Filed

NOTICE: PURSUANT TO RULE 809.32 OF APPELLATE PROCEDURE, AN UNPUBLISHED OPINION IS OF NO PRECEDENTIAL VALUE AND FOR THIS REASON MAY NOT BE CITED IN ANY COURT OF THIS STATE AS PRECEDENT OR AUTHORITY EXCEPT TO SUPPORT A CLAIM OF RES JUDICATA, COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL OR LAW OF THE CASE.

PRIOR HISTORY: [1] APPEAL from a judgment and an order of the circuit court for Price County: DOUGLAS T. FOX, Judge. Cir. Ct. No. 00-CF-60.

DISPOSITION: Affirmed.

CASE SUMMARY:

PROCEDURAL POSTURE: Defendant pleaded no contest to marijuana possession, second offense, in exchange for the State recommending 18 months' probation and dismissal of the charge for possession of drug paraphernalia. The Circuit Court for Price County (Wisconsin) accepted the plea and sentence and denied defendant's motion for postconviction relief. Defendant appealed.

OVERVIEW: At his initial appearance, defendant entered his plea, and engaging defendant in a plea colloquy, the circuit court accepted the plea and recommendation of probation. It was undisputed that no preliminary hearing was held nor was an information filed. Defendant argued that the State's failure to file an information deprived the circuit court of subject matter jurisdiction. The appellate court ruled that because defendant did not contend that the complaint did not charge an offense known to law, the criminal subject matter jurisdiction attached upon the filling of the criminal complaint and continued until the case's final disposition. Furthermore, defendant knew the exact nature of the charge against him and insisted on entering a plea at his initial appearance. Under these circumstances, the circuit court properly concluded that the lack of an information was a mere defect of form that did not prejudice defendant and therefore did not invalidate the judgment.

OUTCOME: The judgment was affirmed.

CORE TERMS: matter jurisdiction, matter of form, preliminary hearing, failure to file, postconviction, deprived, waived, judgment of conviction, count of possession, present case, final disposition, distinguishable, jurisdictional, invalidate, objected, felony, attaches, pled, drug paraphernalia, appearance, marijuana, probation

LEXISNEXIS (R) HEADNOTES

Civil Procedure > Jurisdiction > Subject Matter Jurisdiction > Jurisdiction Over Actions > General Overview

Criminal Law & Procedure > Postconviction Proceedings > Motions to Vacate Judgment

Criminal Law & Procedure > Appeals > Standards of Review > General Overview

HN1[↓] The question whether a circuit court lacks subject matter jurisdiction is a legal issue that the appellate court reviews independently.

Criminal Law & Procedure > Accusatory Instruments > Informations > General Overview

Criminal Law & Procedure > Preliminary Proceedings > Preliminary Hearings > Time Limitations

HN2[↓] See Wis. Stat. § 971.01 (1999-2000).

Civil Procedure > Jurisdiction > General Overview

Criminal Law & Procedure > Accusatory Instruments > Complaints > General Overview

Criminal Law & Procedure > Jurisdiction & Venue > Jurisdiction

HN3[↓] Criminal subject matter jurisdiction is the power of the court to inquire into the charge crime, to apply the applicable law and to declare the punishment. To that end, the circuit court's subject matter jurisdiction attaches upon the filling of the criminal complaint unless the complaint does not charge an offense known to law. Further, once criminal subject matter jurisdiction attaches, it continues until a final disposition of the case.

Criminal Law & Procedure > Accusatory Instruments > Indictments > General Overview > Criminal Law & Procedure > Accusatory Instruments > Informations > General Overview

HN4[↓] See Wis. Stat. § 971.26 (1999-2000).

JUDGES: Before Cane, C.J., Hoover, P.J., and Peterson, J.

OPINION

[*P1] PER CURIAM. Christopher Russell appeals a judgment convicting him of one count of possession of THC, second offense, contrary to Wis. Stat. § 961.41 (3g) (e).[1] He also appeals the order denying his motion for postconviction relief. Russell argues that because the State failed to file an information, the circuit court was deprived of subject matter jurisdiction to accept his plea, impose sentence or enter a judgment of conviction. We reject Russell's argument and affirm the judgment and order.

FOOTNOTES

[1]All referenced to the Wisconsin Statutes are to the 1999-2000 version unless otherwise noted.

Background

[*P2] On August 17, 2000, Russell was charged with one [2] felony count of possession of marijuana as a second offense and one misdemeanor count of possession of drug paraphernalia. At his initial appearance, Russell pled no contest to the marijuana possession charge, second offense, in exchange for the State recommending eighteen months' probation and dismissal of the charge for possession of drug paraphernalia. After engaging Russell in a plea colloquy, the circuit court accepted his plea and, consisted with the States recommendation, sentenced him to eighteen months' probation. It is undisputed that no preliminary hearing was held nor was an information filed.

[*P3] Russell's subsequent motion to vacate the judgment of conviction and dismiss the case was denied. This appeal followed.

Analysis

A. Subject Matter Jurisdiction

[*P4] Russell argues that the State's failure to file an information deprived the circuit court of subject matter jurisdiction. HN1[↑] The question whether a circuit court lacks subject matter jurisdiction is a legal issue that this court reviews independently. See State v. Webster, 196 Wis. 2d 308, 538 N.W. 2d 810 (Ct. App. 1995).

[*P5] Citing State v. Woehrer, 83 Wis. 2d 696, 266 N.W. 2d 366 (1978) [3] and State v. May, 100 Wis. 2d 9, 301 N.W. 2d 458 (Ct. App. 1980), Russell argues that the filing of an information is a jurisdictional requirement in a felony case. Thus, he contends that failure to file an information deprived the court of subject matter jurisdiction. Although May and Woehrer appear to stand for the proposition that Wis. Stat. § 971.02 (2) mandates the filing of an information, the facts if these cases are distinguishable from the present case.[2]

FOOTNOTES

[2] Wisconsin Stat. § 971.01 provides, in relevant part, that HN2 "the information shall be filed with the clerk within 30 days after the completion of the preliminary examination or waiver thereof. ... Failure to file the information within such time shall entitle the defendant to have the action dismissed without prejudice."

[*P6] In May, the defendant moved to dismiss the charges against him because the information had not been served within thirty days [ 4] of the preliminary hearing. May, 100 Wis.2d at 10. Because the issue in May dealt with service, as opposed to filing of an information, the May court's observation that "the filing of the information is a jurisdictional requirement" is mere dicta.

[*P7] Turning to Woehrer, the defendant there, as here, challenged his conviction on the basis of the State's failure to file on information. Woehrer, 83 Wis. 2d at 697. Unlike the present case, however, the Woehrer defendant pled not guilty and prior to his trial, objected to the lack of an information. The Woehrer court, in fact, noted: "There is no claim that the defendant waived such filing by pleading guilty or nolo contendere or by going to trial on the merits. On the contrary, the defendant properly objected to the failure to file the information." Woehrer, 83 Wis. 2d at 699. Thus, the Woehrer court seemingly contemplated the possibility that the filing of an information may be waived.

[*P8] In any event, this court has recognized that HN3↑"criminal subject ... matter jurisdiction is the 'power of the court to [5] inquire into the charged crime, to apply the applicable law and to declare the punishment.'" State v. Webster, 196 Wis. 2d 308, 538 N.W. 2d 810 (Ct. App. 1995) (citing State v. Aniton, 183 Wis. 2d 125, 129, 515 N.W. 2d 302 (Ct. App 1994). To that end, the circuit court's subject matter jurisdiction attaches "upon the filing of the criminal complaint" unless the complaint does not charge an offense known to law. 196 Wis. 2d at 317. Further, "once criminal subject matter jurisdiction attaches, it continues until a final disposition of the case. " Id. Because Russell does not contend that the complaint in this case did not charge an offense known to law, we conclude that criminal subject matter jurisdiction attached upon the filing of the criminal complaint and continued until the case's final disposition.

B. Defect in a Matter of Form

[*P9] Here, the circuit court, in denying Russell's motion for postconviction relief, concluded that the lack of an information was "a mere defect in a matter of form which clearly did not prejudice the defendant and, by operation of [Wis. Stat. § 971.26], does not invalidate [6] the judgment."[3] Russell, citing Woehrer, 83 Wis.2d at 699, argues that "the lack of an information ? is not a matter of form." The Woehrer court's statement in full, however, provided: "The lack of an information in this case is not a matter of form. " Id. (Emphasis added.) Because the facts of Woehrer are distinguishable from the present case, Russell's argument is not persuasive. [4]

FOOTNOTES

[3] Wisconsin Stat. § 971.26 provides that HN4↓ no indictment, information, complaint or warrant shall be invalid nor shall the trial, judgment, or other proceedings be affected by reason of any defect or imperfection in matters of form which do not prejudice the defendant."

[4] Russell also argues that the circuit court erred by additionally concluding that the State was precluded from an information because Russell neither had a preliminary hearing nor waived the right to a preliminary hearing, see State v. Strickland, 27 Wis. 2d 623, 633, 135 N.W. 2d 295 (1965), it was not precluded from filing an information. In any event, because the circuit court properly concluded that the lack of an information was a defect in a matter of form that did not prejudice Russell, we need not address the circuit court's alternate grounds for denying Russell's postconviction motion. See Sweet v. Berge, 113 Wis. 2d 61, 67, 334 N.W. 2d 559 (Ct. App. 1983) (only dispositive issues need be addressed).

[7] [*P10] The circuit court found that Russell knew the exact nature of the charge against him and insisted on entering a plea at his initial appearance. Under these circumstances, the circuit court properly concluded that the lack of an information was a mere defect of form that did not prejudice Russell and therefore did not invalidate the judgment.

By the Court. - Judgment and order affirmed.

This opinion will not be published. See Wis. Stat. Rule 809.23 (1) (b)5.

About LexisNexis Terms & Conditions] Contact Us

LEXIS NEXIS ® CopyRight© 2009 LexisNexis, a division of Reed Elisevier Inc. All rights reserved

Get a Document by Citation 1993 Ohio App. LEXIS 5799

1993 Ohio App. LEXIS 5799,*

STATE OF OHIO, Plaintiff-Appelle v. BILLY RAY BISHOP, Defendant-Appellant

Case No. 3070

COURT OF APPEALS OF OHIO, SECOND APPELLATE DISTRICT, CLARK COUNTY

1993 Ohio App. LEXIS 5799

December 1993, Rendered

PRIOR HISTORY [*1] (T.C. Case No. 92-CR-3562).

DISPOSITION Reversed and Dismissed.

CASE SUMMARY:

PROCEDURAL POSTURE Defendant sought review of an order of a trial court (Ohio), which entered his conviction for criminal trespass upon his no-contest plea and placed him in a pre-trial probation program.

OVERVIEW: The complaint was unsigned by the complaint. Defendant's attorney moved to dismiss the complaint and the action on the grounds of an improperly executed affidavit and complaint. The trial court overruled the motions, holding that defendant had waived the defects. The court ruled the court did not have subject matter jurisdiction of the action due to the lack of a signed complaint, and that the trial court erred in holding that the defect could be waived. The fling of a valid complaint was a necessary prerequisite to the trial courts acquiring jurisdiction. The complaint was required to be made upon oath before any person authorized by law to administer oaths pursuant to Ohio R. Crim. P. 3. Defendant could not have waived a defect that deprived the trial court of subject matter jurisdiction. The court reasoned that the absence of a criminal complaint could not have been waived by defendant's plea of no contest because any conviction resulting from an invalid complaint was a nullity.

OUTCOME: The court reversed the trial courts decision and dismissed the case.

LEXIS (R) HEAD NOTES

Criminal law & Procedure>Accusatory Instrument> Complaints>General Overview

HN1↓ The filing of a valid complaint is a necessary prerequisite to the courts acquiring jurisdiction. A complaint must be made upon oath and before any person authorized by law to administer oaths Ohio R. Crim. P. 3.

Civil Procedure>Jurisdiction>Subject Matter Jurisdiction> Jurisdiction Over Actions> General Overview

Criminal Law & Procedure>>Guilty Pleas>Waiver of Defenses

HN2↓ A defect that deprives a court of subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived by a plea of no contest or even guilty, since any conviction resulting from a invalid complaint is a nullity.

COUNSEL: STEPHEN SCHUMAKER, S. Ct. Regis No. 14643, 50 E. Columbia St., Springfield, OH 45502, Attorney for the Plaintiff-Appelle.

SHAWN A THOMAS, S. Ct. Regis No. 40462, 30 E.. Ct. Regis No. 14643, 30 E. Columbia St., Springfield, OH 45502, OH 45502, Attorney for Defendant-Appellant.

JUDGES: FAIN J., GRADY P.J., and WOLFF, J., concur

OPINION BY: FAIN

OPINION

OPINION

FAIN, J.

Appellant Billy Ray Bishop Appeals from his conviction for criminal trespass.

We find that the trial court did not have subject matter jurisdiction due to the lack of a signed complaint, and erred in holding that the defect could be waived.

I

Bishop entered a no-contest plea to a charge of Criminal Trespass on December 2, 1992, and was placed in a pre-trial probation program. On June 8, 1993, the trial court had found that Bishop had violated the terms of his probation. Bishop's attorney moved to dismiss the complaint and the action on the grounds of an improperly executed affidavit and complaint. The trial court overruled the motions, holding that Bishop had waived the defect, and sentenced Bishop to thirty days in jail, suspending twenty-five days for a six month term of probation.

[2*] From his conviction and sentence, Bishop appeals.

II

Bishop's sole assignment of error is as follows:

> THE TRIAL COURT WAS WITHOUT JURISDICTION TO MAKE A FINDING ON APPELLANTS NO CONTEST PLEA .

HN1↑ The filing of a valid complaint is a necessary prerequisite to a court's acquiring jurisdiction. Columbus v. Jackson (1952) 93 Ohio App. 516, 114 N.E.2d 60, A complaint must be "made upon oath before any person authorized by law to administer oaths." Crim. R. 3.

Here, the complaint was unsigned by a complainant. As a result, we conclude that the trial court did not have subject matter jurisdiction, and Bishop could not be prosecuted.

We also conclude that HN3↑ a defect that deprives a court of subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived by the accused. The absence of a criminal complaint cannot be waived by a plea of no contest or even guilty, since any conviction resulting from an invalid complaint is a nullity. State v. Green (1988), 48 Ohio App.3d 121, 548 N.E.2d 334.

Bishop's sole Assignment of Error is sustained.

III

Bishop's sole assignment of error having been sustained, the judgment of the trial court is Reversed, and this cause is hereby [3*] Dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction.

. . . . . .

GRADY, P.J., and WOLFF, J. concur.

About LexisNexis Terms & Conditions] Contact Us

LEXIS NEXIS ® CopyRight© 2009 LexisNexis, a division of Reed Elisevier Inc. All rights reserved.

IN THE
UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE SEVENTH CIRCUIT

No. 95-2304

RICARDO GLOVER,

Petitioner,

v.

GARY R. McCAUGHTRY, WARDEN,
WAUPUN CORRECTIONAL INSTITUTION,

Respondent.

AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT OF PETITION FOR THE COURT TO RESCIND ITS' ORIGINAL ORDER AND RECALL THE MANDATE THEREOF DENYING HABEAS § 2254 APPEAL BASE ON EXTRAORDINARY CIRCUMSTANCES AND IN THE INTEREST OF JUSTICE

I, Ricardo Glover, being first duly sworn on oath, deposes and says:

1. That I am the petitioner in the above-captioned, who makes this affidavit in support of his petition.

2. That I am presently in the custody of the Wisconsin Department of Corrections, and confined at the State Prison, Oshkosh Correctional Institution (OSCI), by Judy P. Smith, Warden.

3. That on May 29, 1989, at approximately 6:00 a.m., in the State of Wisconsin, Racine County, I was arrested by the Racine Police Department without a warrant and police placed me in their custody and did not release me from their custody.

4. That on the next day, May 30, 1989, I was forcefully brought before a Wisconsin criminal circuit court in chains and shackles by the Racine County District Attorney Office (prosecutor) in Racine County Case No. 89CF402 from the warrantless arrest and detention of my person by police that occurred on May 29, 1989, for a constitutional initial appearance hearing pursuant to the Fourteenth Amendment's due process clause and equal protection clause, and the Fourteenth Amendment's codifications, Wis. § § § 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) and 970.02(1)(a).

5. That at this initial appearance hearing held on May 30, 1989, the prosecutor did not file her written mandatory and jurisdiction accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) against me charging me with a crime against the laws of the State of Wisconsin to invoke the criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdiction jurisdictional powers to hear a criminal action against me pursuant to Wis. § 753.03, nor to invoke the criminal circuit court's personal jurisdictional powers over my person. The criminal circuit court lacked subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate any action against me at the initial appearance held on May 30, 1989, because the prosecutor did not file her timely written mandatory and jurisdiction accusatory instrument [complaint] against me pursuant Wis. § § § 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) and 970.02(1)(a).

6. That at the initial appearance hearing held on May 30, 1989, my constitutional rights to due process of law, equal protection of the law, fundamental fairness and non-deprivation of my liberty pursuant to the Fourteenth Amendment were violated, along with my statutory rights, Wis. § § § 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) and 970.02(1)(a) were violated as well, when the criminal circuit court failed to dismiss the unconstitutional and unlawful proceeding (case) against me for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction.

7. That on May 30, 1989, at the initial appearance hearing, no provision of the constitution or statute, or both, gave the criminal circuit court the jurisdictional powers to adjudicate a criminal or civil action against me, because the prosecutor did not file her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument [complaint] identifying a charge against me that contained the essential facts constituting an offense charged, only a legislature can denounce crimes.

8. In addition to the Fourteenth Amendment's due process clause and equal protection clause, the Wisconsin Legislature placed safeguards in place for protecting my due process and equal protection rights, see Wis. § § § 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) and 970.02(1)(a), where I had been arrested and jailed on May 29, 1989, without a warrant and these safeguards are mandatory time limitations that state what shall occur, who shall perform them, when and when not.

9. On January 8, 1990, jury trial commenced, the prosecutor, an officer of the court, opening statements to the jury and all observers was that I was a "rapist" and I "raped" S.B. This was intentional misconduct by the prosecutor, because said prosecutor had no intention on proving such statements during the course of trial. Because, the prosecutor knew from her very own expert witness, Doctor John W. Linstoth, who testified at trial that he examined S.B. and found no evidence of "insult, tears, bruising, injuries, broken blood vessels" to S.B.'s "vaginal wall," and found "absolutely no evidence of any penetration whatsoever," thus from Dr. Linstoth's expert examination S.B. was a virgin. I beings a "rapist" and "raped" S.B. only existed through the prosecutor's intentional misconduct.

10. The prosecutor was aware of Dr. Brown's report that no rape occurred and that S.B. was "injury free," and she failed to call Dr. Brown as a witness, when he was the first to examine S.B. In addition, the prosecutor was aware of Officer Cros' report which stated, "that intercourse did not occur," and what the examination of the bedsheets revealed.

Once again, S.B. changes her stories now claiming that while she and I was in Kenosha, I asked for some "Vaseline" and placed the same on my penis and attempted to have intercourse with her and that very same "Vaseline" from my penis got on her vagina and buttock area from my attempts to have intercourse with her. The prosecutor's other expert witness, Forensic Chemist Michael Camp testified that he examined the vaginal and rectal swabs that came from S.B. and his examination revealed no such substances as "Vaseline" was detected on neither swab from S.B.

11. S.B. changed her story again, now claiming that she had taken a "bath" before being examined by doctors. The prosecutor's expert witness, Forensic Chemist Camp once again sets the record straight, he testified in his expert opinion if someone (let us say S.B.) had taken a "bath" before being examined by doctors that any seminal materials would disappear first and the "Vaseline" would disappear last from the skin or clothing. However, Dr. Linstoth testified that he found seminal material on S.B. and did not know how long they had been there. In addition testifying that S.B. was not afraid of me and she was injury free. That seminal material was not mine and the prosecutor's expert witness proved that.

12. My trial counsel immediately asked S.B. did she know "Steve", because none of the evidence pointed to me, and "one blonde head hair" was recovered and all parties knew the neither S.B. nor I had blonde hair.

13. The prosecutor realizing that I was innocent stopped the trial and offered me a plea; the prosecutor informed the circuit court judge that it would be easy for the jury to find me guilty of a lesser-included offense that Attempted First-Degree Intentional Homicide (a Class B Felony that carried a 20-year penalty). The prosecutor argued before the criminal circuit court judge for First-Degree Recklessly Endangering Safety (a Class D Felony that carried a 5-year penalty), the criminal circuit court judge stated no. My trial counsel informed the criminal circuit court judge that he had became "bias" against me.

14. The record shows that the criminal circuit court judge took over the role as prosecutor and I was afraid of him. The prosecutor's and the criminal circuit court judge got into a very hearted argument, the criminal circuit court judge stated loudly with thunder in his voice that: "This disturbs me greatly, to sit here and have to argue with the prosecution regarding what I perceive to be a lenient recommendation on their part." The reasons for the criminal circuit court judge's disagreement, he is not only participating in the plea discussions, but he was doing the plea-bargaining as well. The criminal circuit court judge with thunder in his voice stated that his "concern is the, the treatment of count two. Now as far as the total number of years."

15. The criminal circuit court judge was very interested in the outcome of the case. Me sitting in front of the criminal circuit court judge saw the facial expression of anger on his face and heard the thunder in his voice, I totally feared said judge. Troublesome as these statements, expression and anger was to me, more troublesome still when the criminal circuit court judge heard direct evidence to support my innocence, but said judge ignored that evidence and gave a negative opinion on the merits of my case. The criminal circuit court judge with thunder in his voice stated to me sitting in front of him:

1) "the evidence in my opinion is very strong;" this meant to me that the judge was voicing that I was guilty instead of going on the evidence before him;

2) the State has "presented a prima facie case thus far," this meant to me that the judge heard evidence in my favor but totally ignored it;

3) "yesterday I heard evidence, I heard the witness who at least from my prospective, was a very credible witness, who gave a very graphic description of what purportedly occurred;" that meant to me that the judge had made up his mind that I was guilty not from the evidence presented but from a personal dislike of me; and,

4) "at least in my opinion watching the victim her demeanor in the stand, I found her to be extremely credible witness very believable in her testimony presented herself as a very strong witness....," this meant to me no matter what S.B. stated the judge would believe her, as everyone initially believed each and every different statement she told.

16. The criminal circuit court judge was participating in the plea bargaining process and brought his force and majesty of his office to me, I was actually innocent of the crimes, but pled out of fear brought onto me by the criminal circuit court judge.

17. I saw the anger in the criminal circuit court judge's facial expression, heard the anger and thunder in said judge's voice, the judge's awesome power to impose a substantially longer or maximum sentence in excess of that proposed is whether referred to or not. I needed no reminder that if I rejects the proposal of the circuit court judge and continue to stand upon my rights to jury trial, but if I was convicted, I faced a significant longer sentence. Even when the trial was in progress, the criminal circuit court judge wanted me to plea, the criminal circuit court judge stated: "[f]irst of all, well, we'll just continue on here. It's my understanding that there still are negotiations that are in progress? Is that correct.?" There were no plea negotiation in progress, how could that be when all parties were in the middle of trial.

18. I did receive the maximum sentence by the criminal circuit court judge, in this case, I am actually innocent of the crimes and the record on its face demonstrates this as well, it is impossible for the alleged incident to have taken place at all. S.B.'s statements and testimony was incredible on its face, but the circuit court judge forced me to plead out of fear.

19. My family members asked others for legal assistance regarding my case, and have received hundreds cases similar and on-point to my situation from organizations and law professors in other States.

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746, I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Dated this 21st day of July, 2010.

Respectfully submitted,

"s/" _____.
Ricardo Glover, Affiant

United States Court of Appeals

For the Seventh Circuit
Chicago, Illinois 60604
Submitted July 30, 1997
Decided November 25, 1997[1]

Hon. KENNETH F. RIPPLE, Circuit Judge
Hon. ILANA DIAMOND ROVNER, Circuit Judge
Hon. TERENCE T. EVANS, Circuit Judge

No. 95-2304

	) Appeal from the United ) States District Court for RICARDO GLOVER,	)the Eastern District of Petitioner-Appellant,	) Wisconsin.
v.	) No. 95 C 425
GARY McCAUGHTRY,	) J.P. Stadtmueller, Respondent-Appellate.	) Chief Judge

---

[1] After an examination of the briefs and the record, we have concluded that oral argument is unnecessary; accordingly, the appeal is submitted on the briefs and the record. See Fed. R. App. P 34(a); Cir. R. 34(f).

The record in this case was lost after it was logged with this court. The court ordered that the record be reconstituted. See Fed. R. App. P. 10. Both parties, through counsel, participated in the reconstruction of the record. Neither has objected to the state of the reconstituted record on which the case is now submitted to the panel.

ORDER

I

INTRODUCTION

Petitioner Ricardo Glover, a Wisconsin state prisoner, filed a pro se petition for a writ of habeas corpus, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254, which the district court denied, finding no merit to any of the claims. On appeal, Glover contends that the district court erred in finding that his Fourth Amendment rights were not violated when police officers stopped the vehicle in which he was riding and then arrested him and erred in finding that his confession was not coerced. He contends, in the reply brief, that the state court had no subject matter jurisdiction to hear his case.[2] We affirm.

Glover was charged with first-degree sexual assault, false imprisonment with a dangerous weapon and attempted first-degree intentional homicide. In February 1990, a jury trial commenced. However, after the government closed its case in chief, Glover entered a plea of guilty to first-degree sexual assault, false imprisonment with a dangerous weapon, and a plea of no contest to the charge of attempted first-degree intentional homicide. A judgment of conviction was entered on February 22,

---

[2] The State of Wisconsin makes no claim that Glover's guilty plea waived these issues. See Lefkowitz v. Newsome, 420 U.S. 283 (1975); Tollett v. Henderson, 411 U.S. 258 (1973).

1990, and Glover was sentenced to 45 years' imprisonment.

On March 18, 1992, the Wisconsin Court of Appeals affirmed the conviction. State v. Glover, No. 91-0952-CR, 1992 WL 125183 (Wis. Ct. App. Mar. 18, 1992). Glover also filed a state petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the Wisconsin Court of appeals. The state appellate court struck the petition for non-compliance with Wisconsin's appellate rules.

On April 21, 1995, Glover filed a federal petition for habeas corpus, 28 U.S.C. § 2254 challenging the Wisconsin convictions, and raising eleven specific claims.[3] The district court dismissed the petition after concluding that none of the alleged grounds had merit. The court also held that Glover had exhausted his state remedies and had not defaulted on his claims.

III
DISCUSSION

Glover filed his petition for writ of habeas corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254. Under the holding in Lindh v. Murphy, 117 S. Ct. 2059, 2968 (1997) ("the new provisions of chapter 153 general apply only to cases filed after the Act because effective"), the amendments enacted as part of the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (AEDPA) do not apply to Glover's case because the petition was pending at the time of the new Act. We therefore rely on the pre-AEDPA habeas corpus standards.

---

[3] Only three of these claims have been raised on appeal.

A. Factual Background

The facts, as stated by the Wisconsin Court of Appeals in the direct criminal appeal, are as follows:

> The charges against Glover stemmed from criminal acts committed by him on May 29, 1989 against his eleven-year-old sister-in-law, S.B. Testimony at the hearing on Glover's motions to suppress evidence indicated that on that day at approximately 3:18 a.m., Racine police officer Francis Vitacco was dispatched to a Racine residence where he met S.B., who was soaking wet and being cared for by the occupants of the residence, These residents told Vitacco that S.B. had been wet when she came to their door and her hands had been tied behind her back. S.B. told Vitacco that her brother-in-law, Glover, had tied her hands together and thrown her from a bridge into a nearby river. S.B. told police that before throwing her into the river, Glover had sexually molested her at knifepoint. Vitacco also discovered wet, child-sized footprints leading from the river.

Vitacco subsequently took S.B. to a hospital. S.B. provided police with Glover's name, his physical description, a description of what he was wearing , and a description of the vehicle he was driving at the of the offenses, including its license number. At approximately 6:00 a.m., Vitacco was advised by his sergeant as to Glover's possible location. Vitacco and another officer drove to the address and discovered the vehicle identified by S.B. part in front. While the officers waited for backup assistance, the car began to move.

> Vitacco and his partner then stopped the vehicle and when they pulled it over observed three females in the front seat and a male matching S.B.'s description of Glover in the back seat. Vitacco then told Glover to step out of the vehicle and placed him under arrest. The car was immediately searched, leading to the seizure of a knife which was lying on the console by the shifting lever.

Glover, 1992 WL 125185, at 1 (emphasis added).

In a federal habeas corpus proceeding, a state court's finding of the facts are presumed correct. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d). Glover disputes the italicized portion of the state appellate court's statement of facts and insists that, at the time police first interviewed the victim, she had only accused Glover of pushing her off a bridge, an argument which we discuss further below. In any event, Glover concedes that "the facts surrounding [his] arrest are not disputed and, therefore, all that is presented here is the question of law as to whether those facts constituted a reasonable suspicion to stop [his] vehicle and whether was probable cause to arrest him at the point he was arrested." Appellant's Br. at 10.

B. Fourth Amendment Claims

Glover argues that the trial court should have suppressed all evidence stemming from the stop of the automobile because the police did not have the necessary articulated and reasonable suspicion of wrongdoing. See United States v. Hensley, 469 U.S. 221, 229 (1985); Terry v. Ohio, 392 U.S. 1 (1968). Glover also argues that, even if the vehicle stop was appropriate, the police still had no probable cause to arrest him.

Under Stone v. Powell, 428 U.S. 465, 494 (1976), we cannot consider these Fourth Amendment claims in a federal habeas corpus proceeding unless Glover was denied a full and fair opportunity to litigate his claims in state court. Initially, we reject Glover's argument that the government has waived the argument that Stone v. Powell bars any review of the Fourth Amendment claims because it failed to refer to the Stone holding in the district court. The government was never required to file an Answer to the federal habeas corpus petition, and therefore it had no opportunity to refer to Stone. Glover himself, however, waited until his reply brief[4] to argue that he had not received a full and fair opportunity to litigate his Fourth Amendment claims, which would generally result in a finding of waiver. See Wildlife Express Corp. v. Carol Wright Sales, Inc. 18 F.3d 502, 508 n.5 (7th Cir. 1994). Giving Glover the benefit of the doubt, however, in view of language in the opening brief that might be construed as an attempt to raise the full and fair opportunity claim, we shall consider the merits of the Fourth Amendment claims.

[4] Notably, at Glover's request, we appointed counsel and permitted the parties to re-brief the case. The Stone v. Powell issue was raised in the state's original appellate brief, but still ignored by Glover in his new, subsequently filed opening brief.

We hold that, even if Glover did not have a full and fair opportunity to litigate the claims based on the state appellate court's incorrect statement of facts present at the suppression hearing, cf. Turentine v. Miller, 80 F.3d 222, 224-26 (7th Cir.), cert. denied, 117 S.Ct. 394 (1996); Weber v. Murphy, 15 F.3d 691, 694 (7th Cir.), cert. denied, 511 U.S. 1097 (1994), the undisputed facts fully support a finding that the police had a reasonable and articulable suspicion to justify stopping the car in which Glover was riding, and had probable cause to arrest him.

Glover only offers a weak argument that the police had no reasonable suspicion to stop him. The victim knew Glover, her brother-in-law, and gave a full physical description of him, of the clothes he was wearing at the time of the alleged offense, and of his vehicle. When the police located the vehicle described by the victim, they observed Glover sitting in the back seat; he matched the physical description the victim had given. The main thrust of the argument Glover presents, however, is that at the time he was stopped and arrested, the police had no reason to believe that anyone had committed a crime against the child. Glover argues that there was no testimony presented at the suppression hearing indicating that the police knew the victim had been sexually molested at knife point and then thrown into the river with her hands tied behind her. Glover's argument rests on the unlikely proposition that "one can imagine all sort of circumstances where" pushing a child off a bridge into a river "would not amount to criminal behavior," for example, "one could accidentally push another off a bridge." Appellant's Br. at 12-13. He maintains that the suppression hearing involved no testimony describing "what sort of bridge was involved" and thus it "could have been anything from a mile-long suspension bridge which runs 250 feet over the surface of the water, to a small wooden foot bridge running over a creek." Appellant's Br. at 12. He argues that the "ultimate legal question" is whether being "pushed off a bridge into water" is sufficient to warrant a belief that he "engaged in, or [was] about to engage in, criminal behavior." Appellant's Br. at 12.

The police reports, upon which the criminal complaint was based, expressly state that, prior to being brought to the hospital, the victim told the police that after sexually molesting her at knife point, Glover drove her to the bridge, tied her hands behind her back, and threw her into the river, a distance the police determined to be over 17 feet. Moreover, even the undisputed facts gave the police probable cause to arrest Glover. As Glover admits, the police knew that the victim claimed to have been pushed into the river in the middle of the night. Moreover, Glover concedes that the officer who first interviewed the victim was told that he was sent to investigate a complaint of attempted homicide and sexual assault. The police were called shortly after the victim was able to get out of the river, and they saw child-sized footprints, still wet, leading up the river bank and across the bridge.[5] The victim identified Glover as the perpetrator. The police clearly had probable cause to believe a crime had been committed. We hold that the record fully supports the police officers' conduct in initially stopping the vehicle, and in giving them probable cause to arrest Glover.

C. Voluntariness of Confession

Glover argues that the Statement he made to the police following his arrest should have been suppressed because they were involuntary. He claims that the involuntariness resulted from the fact that either his signature on a form waiving his Miranda rights was forged, or his signed but did not understand what he was signing; that his request for an attorney was ignored; and various other factors, including "tactics" used by the police, and his fatigue, hunger, and intoxication at the time of questioning.

---

[5] According to the police reports appended to his petition by Glover, the police immediately obtained the cloth which people living near the bridge had removed from the child's bound hands. The reports also recite that the child was soaking wet when the police first saw her.

Proof of coercive police conduct can support a finding that a confession was not voluntary. Colorado v. Connelly, 479 U.S. 157, 167 (1986). The ultimate issue of the voluntariness of a confession is a question of law which we review de novo. Thompson v. Keohane, 516 U.S. 99, 465-66 (1995); Miller v. Fenton, 474 U.S. 104, 115-17 (1985); Cf. Ornelas v. United States, 116 S.Ct. 1657, 1662 (1996); United States v. Brooks, 125 F.3d 484, (7th Cir. 1997); United States v. Mills, 122 F. 3d 346, 348-49 (7th Cir.), petition for cert. filed, ____ U.S.L.W. ____ (U.S. Nov. 5, 1997) (No. 97-6692); United States v. D.F., 115 F 3d 413, 419 (7th Cir. 1997).

1. Request for Attorney

Glover argues, in the context of the coerced confession claim, that the statements should have been suppressed because during the interrogation he asked for an attorney when he remarked to the police, "I have no attorney."

Hearings were held on Glover's motions to suppress, and the trial courts found that Glover had been properly advised of his right to counsel, and then waived that right. The Wisconsin Court of Appeals held that the evidence taken at the hearings was sufficient to support the trial court's finding that Glover was informed of his right to counsel prior to questioning, and that he voluntarily and knowingly waived the right to counsel.

We agree with the district court that the statement "I have no attorney" was "ambiguous at best," and that the police were not required to clarify, based on this statement alone, whether or not Glover was requesting an attorney. See Davis v. United States, 512 U.S. 452 (1994) (finding to be equivocal the Petitioner's statement, Maybe I should talk to a lawyer", but held that a suspect "must articulate his desire to have counsel present sufficiently clearly that a reasonable police officer in the circumstances would understand the statement to be a request for an attorney"). We also note the contradiction between Glover's argument that "had he known he had the right to speak to an attorney" he would have done so instead of giving statements to the police, and his argument that he asked for but was denied an attorney.

2. Claim of a fabricated Miranda Form

Glover argues that the confession should have been suppressed because the form purportedly bearing his signature and stating that Miranda rights had been given and understood was falsified by the police.

We conclude that there is no basis upon which to disturb the state courts' credibility determinations that Glover was read his Miranda rights, and that the signature on the form verifying this reading was in fact Glover's. See Henderson v. DeTella, 97 F.3d 942, 948 (7th Cir. 1996), cert. denied, 117 S. Ct. 1471 (1997). Moreover, we note that Glover's claim that the signature on the form was forged contradicts his statement that he did sign the form, but that, without his glasses, he could not read it. He states that he "was under the understanding that he was signing a form for his clothing to be taken, not a waiver of rights form." Habeas Corpus Pet. At 5-a.

3. Coerced Confession: Other Factors

Glover also argues that his statements were coerced, for example, by the police telling him horrifying stories of "what they did to John Dillinger." In addition, he alleges that during the 3-1/2 hours of questioning, he was suffering from sleep deprivation; anxiety; hunger; a psychiatric disorder ("schizoid personality disorder"); intoxication; and poor vision; and that "he was a stutterer."

The state appellate court found that the evidence supported the trial courts [6] findings that no improper of coercive police conduct occurred, when the questioning occurred over a period of only 3 ½ hours, with periodic breaks, and the police officers testified that Glover seemed alert and gave coherent answers. The facts presented in this record strongly support the state courts' underlying factual determinations, and our de novo review leads us to conclude that no police coercion undermined the confession. The "horrifying story" about John Dillinger, if true, does not rise to the level of a due process violation. There is no evidence that the police knew, or should have known, of Glover's alleged psychiatric disorder. See Bae v. Peters, 950 F. 2d

---

[6] Glover was initially charged in two different counties in Wisconsin, and thus two different trial courts heard the defense motions to suppress.

469, 475 (7th Cir. 1991). Nor did Glover appear to be intoxicated immediately before, during, or after the interview. See United States v. Chrismon, 965 F. 2d 1465, 1469 (7th Cir. 1992). In fact, Glover claims only that he had consumed "large amounts of alcohol...on the evening before the incident." The interview itself did not take place until 10:00 a.m. the next day; this interval further undermines his claim that he was still intoxicated at the time. In regard to Glover's repeated reliance on the fact that he stuttered, he points to nothing to indicate the import of stuttering; for example, he does not claim that the police misunderstood any portion of the statements he made. And, given the brief length of the mid-morning interview, Glover's complaint that he was "interrogated...over the course of three hours with nothing to eat" can hardly point to police coercion.

Finally, Glover argues that the police were "attempting to wear [him] down." He points to the detectives' testimony that, during the interview, they were trying to get him to "change" his story, that they took breaks to "discuss [their] strategy," and that different detectives interviewed him. These are normal police interviewing procedures that simply do not rise to the level of coercion.

We conclude, viewing the totality of circumstances, that Glover's claim that his confession was involuntary and resulted from police coercion is without merit.

D. State Court's Jurisdiction

Glover argues in his reply brief that the state court had no "subject matter jurisdiction" to hear his case because at the time he first appeared before the court, no charges had been filed, and charges were not filed until the day after his arrest. [7] An argument raised for the first time in a reply brief is waived. [8] Wildlife Express Corp., 18 F. 3d at 508 n.5; 7th Cir. R. 28(f). In any event, we find no violation of Glover's due process rights. See United States v. Smith, 80 F.3d 1188 (7th Cir. 1996).

Conclusion

For the reasons stated, the judgment of the district court is affirmed.

AFFIRMED

---

[7] The Wisconsin Court of Appeals held, the one-day delay for further investigation and the filing of a complaint was properly granted by the trial court, and did not constitute an unreasonable delay under Wisconsin law, citing Wis. Stat. §§ 970.01, 970.02.

[8] Glover's counsel notes in the reply brief that despite Circuit Rule 28(f), "Glover has forcefully demanded that counsel address the jurisdictional issue in this reply brief," Appellant's Reply Br. At 5, that he filed the opening brief before Glover had the opportunity to review it; and that this court subsequently denied Glover's attempt to file a supplemental pro se brief raising the issue.

United States District Court

EASTERN DISTRICT OF WISCONSIN

RICARDO GLOVER,
Petitioner, JUDGMENT IN A CIVIL CASE

GARY R. MCCAUGHTRY,
Respondent. CASE NUMBER:95-C-425

☐ Jury Verdict. This action came before the Court for a trial by jury. The issues have been tried and the jury has rendered its verdict.

☒ Decision by Court. This action came on for consideration before the Court and a decision has been rendered.

IT IS ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that Glover's petition for a writ of habeas corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. section 2254 be and the same is hereby DISMISSED;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Glover's request for leave to proceed in forma pauperis be and the same is hereby DENIED as moot; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Glover's motion for appointment of counsel be and the same is hereby DENIED as moot.

1129

5/16/95 SOFRON B. NEDILSKY
Date Clerk

Copy mailed to attorneys "s/" .
For parties by the Court (By) Deputy Clerk
Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 77(d).

UNITED STATES CODES

Title 28, Section § 2244 (b) (1)- Finality of determination

A claim presented in a second or successive habeas corpus application under section 2254 that was presented in a prior application shall be dismissed.

Title 28, section § 2254 (a) – State custody; remedies in Federal Courts.

(a) The Supreme Court, a Justice thereof, a circuit judge, or a district court shall entertain an application for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of a person in custody pursuant to the judgment of a State court only on the ground that he is in custody in violation of the Constitution or laws or treaties of the United States.

Amendment XIV [1868]

Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United states and the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

183

(2)

No.

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

RICARDO GLOVER,

Petitioner,

v.

GARY McCAUGHTRY, WARDEN,

Respondent.

Separate Appendix
To Petition For Writ Of Certiorari

RICARDO GLOVER
Layman (Pro Se) Litigant
Prisoner's ID #207606
Oshkosh Correctional Institution
Post Office Box 3310
Oshkosh, Wisconsin 54903-3310

No.

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

RICARDO GLOVER,

Petitioner,

v.

GARY McCAUGHTRY, WARDEN,

Respondent.

Separate Appendix
To Petition For Writ Of Certiorari

INDEX TO SEPARATE APPENDICES

Appendix-A Order, United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit denying Petition For The Court To Rescind Its' Original Order And Recall the mandate thereof Denying Habeas § 2254 Appeal Based On Extraordinary Circumstances And In The Interest Of Justice (Issued: August 23, 2010).....1a

Appendix-B Petition For The Court To Rescind Its' Original Order And Recall the Mandate thereof Denying Habeas § 2254 Appeal Based On Extraordinary Circumstances And In The Interest Of Justice (Dated: July 21, 2010) .....2a -111a

Appendix-C Judgment, United States District Court Eastern District of Wisconsin Entered: (May 16, 1995).....112a-113a

Appendix-D 28 U.S.C. § 2244 (b) of the United States Code; 28 U.S.C. § 2245 (b) of the United States Code; Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution.....114a

United States Court of Appeals
For the Seventh Circuit
Chicago, Illinois 60604
August 23, 2010

Before

KENNETH F. RIPPLE, Circuit Judge

No. 95-2304

RICARDO GLOVER,
Petitioner-Appellant,

Appeal from the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Wisconsin.

v.

No. 95 C 425

GARY McCAUGHTRY,
Respondent-Appellate.

J.P. Stadtmueller, Judge

ORDER

Ricardo Glover's MOTION TO RECALL THE MANDATE is DENIED. The motion constitutes a second or successive collateral attack that may be commenced only if the criteria of 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b) have been satisfied, Calderon v. Thompson, 523 U.S. 538, 553-54 (1998), which is not here argued. Indeed, by iterating the claim previously presented, authorization would be barred by § 2244(b)(1).

IN THE
UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE SEVENTH CIRCUIT

No. 95-2304

RICARDO GLOVER,

Petitioner,

v.

GARY R. McCAUGHTRY, WARDEN,
WAUPUN CORRECTIONAL INSTITUTION,

Respondent.

PETITION FOR THE COURT TO RESCIND ITS' ORIGINAL ORDER AND RECALL THE MANDATE THEREOF DENYING HABEAS § 2254 APPEAL BASE ON EXTRAORDINARY CIRCUMSTANCES AND IN THE INTEREST OF JUSTICE

Petitioner Ricardo Glover, a layman, (pro se) litigant, petitions the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, the original panel of the denial of his habeas § 2254 appeal, the Honorable Kenneth F. Ripple, Ilana Diamond Rovner, and Terence T. Evans, Circuit Judges to rescind their original order and recall the mandate thereof denying his habeas § 2254 appeal. See Ricardo Glover v. Gary R. McCaughtry, Warden, No. 95-2304 (7th Cir. 1997, unpublished opinion).

This petition is based on extraordinary circumstances exists and in the interest of justice. Mr. Glover acknowledges that this Court has warned him if he returns to it with his personal jurisdiction and subject-matter jurisdictional claims that he will invite sanction, however, on-point cases are respectfully submitted herein show that extraordinary circumstances exists, in the interest of justice and a miscarriage of justice has occurred for the Court to take a look at them, and thereafter if the Court believes Mr. Glover should be sanctioned, then so be it, or if not the Court may grant him extraordinary relief.

Mr. Glover respectfully asks this Court for its attention, because he is actually innocent and his liberty was unconstitutionally and unlawfully taken from him. The hardest thing for a layman (pro se) litigant as Mr. Glover to do is to get a court to listen to him and respect his pleadings. Mr. Glover is a layman (pro se) litigant and unaided by counsel, he asks this Court that the present petition be liberal construction according to Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89 (2007):

> "[B]een proceeding, from the litigation's outset, without counsel. A > document filed pro se is 'to be liberally construed,' Estelle, 429 U.S., at 106, 97 S.Ct. 285, 50 L.Ed.2d 251, and 'a pro se complaint, however inactfully pleaded, must be held to less stringent standard than formal pleadings drafted by lawyers,' ibid. (internal quotation marks omitted). Cf. Federal Rules Civil Procedure 8(f) ('All pleadings shall be so construed as to do substantial justice')."

See 551 U.S. at 94. Mr. Glover drafted this petition after his family received hundreds of cases similar and on-point to his situation from organizations and law professors in different States. Mr. Glover respectfully submits and presents his extraordinary situation.

1. CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY JURISDICTION

A. The Supreme Court's Jurisdiction

"Only the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court is derived directly from the Constitution. Every other court created by the general government derives its jurisdiction wholly from the authority of Congress." See Kline v. Burke Constr. Co., 260 U.S. 226, 234 (1922). "Congress, having the power to establish the courts, must define their respective jurisdiction.... Courts created by statute can have no jurisdiction but such as the statute confers." See Sheldon v. Sill, 49 U.S. (8 How.) 441, 448-449, 12 L.Ed. 1147 (1850).

"[A]s regards all courts of the United States inferior to this tribunal, two things are necessary to create jurisdiction, whether original or appellate. The Constitution must have give to the court the capacity to take it, and an act of Congress [legislative] must have supplied it.... To the extent that such action is not taken, the power lies dormant." See Mayor v. Cooper, 6 Wall. 247, 252, 18 L.Ed. 851 (1868) (emphasis added).

B. The Seventh Circuit's Jurisdiction

The Seventh Circuit's "jurisdiction is limited and is established by Article III of the Constitution and by statutes enacted by Congress pursuant to the Constitution." See United States v. Janik, 10 F.3d 470, 471 (7th Cir. 1993). "Created by these written laws, federal courts, including [the Seventh Circuit], 'disclaim all jurisdiction not given by the constitution or by the law of the United States.'" Id. (quoting Ex Parte Bollman, 8 U.S. (4 Cranch) 75, 93, 2 L.Ed. 554 (1807)).

C. The Wisconsin Criminal Courts' Jurisdiction

In Wisconsin, the commencement of criminal proceedings are found under Chapter 968, the timely filing of a criminal complaint by the prosecutor, see Wis. § 968.01(2) against a defendant at his or her initial appearance hearing from a warrantless arrest and detention of their person in according to the time limitation period provided by Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) and 970.01(2), to invoke the criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdictional power to act and proceed thereinafter [to adjudicate] pursuant to Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03, and in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a), to provide the defendant with constitution notice of the charged filed against him or her and to provided them with a copy of the complaint. In addition, for the criminal circuit court to set bail on the defendant for the "charged" offense. See Wis. § § § 969.02(1) and 969.03(1) and 970.02(2). See (Exhibits A-E). If the criminal complaint is not filed on the criminal circuit court at the defendant's initial appearance from a warrantless arrest and detention against him or her, then no offense exists, and therefore the criminal circuit court does not have subject-matter jurisdiction over a nonexistent offense. See State v. Christensen, 110 Wis.2d 538, 542, 329 N.W.2d 382, 383 (1983).

Wisconsin criminal circuit courts are created by written law, and their subject-matter jurisdiction is defined by written law, see Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03. The criminal circuit courts, > "cannot transcend that jurisdiction. It is unnecessary to state the reasoning on which the opinion is found, because it has been repeatedly given by this Court; and with decisions hereto rendered on this point, no member of the bench has, even for an instant, been dissatisfied." See Ex parte Bollman, 4 Cranch 75, 93, 2 L.Ed. 554 (1807). Two-hundred years later, in 2007, the Supreme Court in Bowles v. Russell, 551 U.S. 205, 214

(2007), enforced its Bollman decision when it held that courts have "no authority to create equitable exceptions to jurisdictional requirements," along with its decision in Torres v. Oakland Scavenger Co., 487 U.S. 312, 317 n.3 (1988) ("a litigant's failure to clear a jurisdiction hurdle can never be 'harmless' or waived by a court."), and enforcing the same in Bowles, 551 U.S. at 213 (when a litigant's "error is one of jurisdictional magnitude, [they] cannot rely on forfeiture or waiver to excuse [their] lack of compliance with the statute's time limitation.").

The Wisconsin Court of Appeals' jurisdiction is invoked by,

> Similar, to the commencement of a criminal proceeding in the criminal circuit court, it is timely filing of the notice of appeal, which invokes the Wisconsin Court of Appeals' subject-matter jurisdiction. See State v. Williams, 230 Wis.2d 50, 601 N.W.2d 838 (Wis.App. 1999) (appeal dismissed for untimely filing of the notice of appeal). An appeal is commenced and jurisdiction is invoked by the filing of the notice of appeal with the clerk of the criminal circuit court, appeal of criminal circuit court's order or judgment is perfected by filing timely notice of appeal. Id.

In addition, the Wisconsin Supreme Court's jurisdiction is invoked by,

> A decision of the Wisconsin Court of Appeals is reviewable only by a petition to appeal which is granted by the Wisconsin Supreme Court and that the petition shall be filed within 30 days of the date of the decision of the Wisconsin Court of Appeals constitutes a limitation upon the jurisdiction of the Wisconsin Supreme Court to entertain a petition to appeal. See Wis. § 808.10; see also First Wisconsin Nat. Bank v. Nicholaou, 87 Wis.2d 360, 274 N.W.2d 704 (Wis. 1979) (the petition to appeal the decision of the court of appeals filed outside the mandatory language of sec. 808.10 constitutes a limitation upon the jurisdiction of the court to entertain a petition to appeal, the court has no subject-matter jurisdiction over the untimely appeal, nor can it extend the jurisdictional requirements).

2. THE PROTECTIONS OF THE FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT AND IT'S CODIFICATIONS

This case involves Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, which provide in relevant part:

> Section 1... No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the > privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Sections 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment are the prohibitions addressed to the States. A State acts by its legislative, its executive, or its judicial authorities, by whatever instruments or in whatever modes that action may be taken. A State can act in no other way.

The Fourteenth Amendment is enforced by its codifications, Wisconsin Statutes Sections, which provides:

> Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution – Circuit court: jurisdiction, which provides: "Except as otherwise provided by law, the circuit court shall have original jurisdiction in all matters civil and criminal within this state and such appellate jurisdiction in the circuit as the legislature may prescribe by law. The circuit court may issue all writs necessary in aid of its jurisdiction." (Emphasis added). See (Exhibit·A at 48a, attached to this petition).
>
> Wisconsin Chapter 753.03, Circuit Court, Wis. § 753.03 – Jurisdiction of circuit courts, which provides in relevant part: "the circuit courts have power to hear and determine, within their respective circuits, all civil and criminal actions...." See (Exhibit-B at 48a, attached to this petition).

Wisconsin Chapter 968, Commencement Of Criminal Proceedings, Wis. § 968.01(2) – Complaint, which provides: "The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged." See (Exhibit-C at 49a, attached to this petition).

Wisconsin Chapter 968, Commencement Of Criminal Proceedings, Wis. § 968.04(1)(a) – Warrant or summons on complaint, which provides in relevant part: "When an accused has been arrested without a warrant and is in custody ... no warrant shall be issued and the complaint shall be filed forthwith with a judge." (Emphasis added). See (Exhibit-C at 49a, attached to this petition).

Wisconsin Chapter 969, Bail And Other Conditions Of Release, Wis. § 969.02(1) – Release of defendants charged with misdemeanors, which provides: "A judge may release a defendant charged with a misdemeanor without bail or may permit him to execute an unsecured appearance bond in an amount specified by the judge." See (Exhibit-D at 50a, attached to this petition).

Wisconsin Chapter 969, Bail And Other Conditions Of Release, Wis. § 969.03(1) – Release of defendants charged with felonies, which provides: "A judge may release a defendant charged with a felony without bail or may permit him to execute an unsecured appearance bond or the judge may in addition to requiring the execution of an appearance bond or in lieu thereof impose one or more ... condition." See (Exhibit-D at 50a, attached to this petition).

Wisconsin Chapter 970 Criminal Procedure – Preliminary Proceedings, Wis. § 970.01(2) – Initial appearance before a judge, which provides: "When a person is arrested without a warrant and brought before a judge, a complaint shall be filed forthwith." (Emphasis added). See (Exhibit-E at 51a, attached to this petition).

Wisconsin Chapter 970 Criminal Procedure – Preliminary Proceedings, Wis. § 970.02(1)(a) – Duty of a judge at the initial appearance, which provides: "At the initial appearance the judge shall inform the defendant:

> Of the charge against him and shall furnish the defendant with a copy of the complaint which shall contain the possible penalties for the offenses set forth therein. In the case of a felony, the judge shall also inform the defendant of the penalties for the felony with which the defendant is charged." (Emphasis added). See (Exhibit-E at 51a, attached to this petition).
>
> Wisconsin Chapter 970 Criminal Procedure – Preliminary Proceedings Wis. § 970.02(2) – Duty of a judge at the initial appearance, which provides: "The judge shall admit the defendant to bail in accordance which ch. 969." (Emphasis added). See (Exhibit-E at 51a, attached to this petition).

The foregoing codifications of the Fourteenth Amendment protect individuals against deprivation of their liberty without due process of law and the equal protect of the law at the hands of the State. According to Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) and 970.01(2), the prosecutor shall file the complaint, see Wis. § 968.01(2) against the defendant prior to his or her initial appearance, or at the time of his or her initial appearance from a warrantless arrest and detention to invoke the criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdictional power pursuant to Wis. § 753.03 to hear a criminal action. In addition, the criminal circuit court' shall inform the defendant of the charge against him or her and shall provide the defendant with a copy of the complaint, which contains the charge and penalties against him or her. See Wis. § 970.02(1)(a).

The Fourteenth Amendment, which ordains that "all person born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States, and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

3. THE REASONS WHY THE COURT SHOULD RESCIND ITS' ORIGINAL DENIAL AND RECALL ITS MANDATE ON MR. GLOVER'S HABEAS § 2254 APPEAL, INSTEAD OF SANCTIONING HIM.

A. The Accusatory Instrument Is A Jurisdictional Document.

There are three accusatory instruments used to charge a defendant in a court of law, they are an indictment of a grand jury, an information and complaint of the public prosecutor. An accusatory instrument is "[a] document in which an accusation of crime is set forth like an indictment, information or complaint." See Black's Law Dictionary at 15 (1891-1991).

This Court has held that an indictment meets the requirement of Rule 7(c)(1) if it (1) contains the elements of the offense charged; (2) fairly informs the defendant of the nature of the charge against him; and (3) enables the defendant to plead the judgment as a bar to later prosecution for the same offense. See United States v. Moore, 446 F.3d 671, 676-77 (7th Cir. 2006); see also Fed. R. Crim. P. 7(c) (1) ("The indictment or information must be a plain, concise and definite written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged....").

The State of South Dakota uses an indictment of a grand jury, or information of the public prosecutor to charge a defendant with a crime. See Ronald Lee Honomichl v. State of South Dakota, No. 13918, 333 N.W.2d 797, 798, 1983 S.D. LEXIS 334, 3-4 (S.D. 1983) (quoting Article VI, § 10 of the South Dakota Constitution). The South Dakota Supreme Court stated "[w]ithout a formal and sufficient indictment or information, a court does not acquire subject matter jurisdiction and thus an accused may not be punished for a crime." See Honomichl, 333 N.W.2d at 798, 1983 S.D. LEXIS at 4 (citing Albrecht v. United States, 273 U.S. 1, 47 S.Ct. 250 (1927)).

Wisconsin uses as its accusatory instrument a complaint and not the information to charge a defendant with a crime, see State of Wisconsin v. Christopher L. Russell, 251 Wis.2d 482, 640 N.W.2d 565, 2002 Wisc. App. LEXIS 54 (Wis.App. 2002, unpublished opinion) (the criminal complaint at the defendant's initial appearance hearing not the information charged him with a crime, the absence of the information was a mere defect and did not deprived the criminal court of subject-matter jurisdiction). See (Exhibit-K at 75a-83a, attached hereto); see also State v. Smaxwell, 235 Wis.2d 230, 612 N.W.2d 756 (Wis.App. 2000).

The accusatory instrument, the criminal complaint is the mandatory and jurisdictional instrument for charging a defendant with an offense committed against the laws of Wisconsin, Wis. § 968.01(2) - Complaint provides: "The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged." Wisconsin criminal circuit courts' subject-matter jurisdiction is derived from written law; and defined by written law, Article VII, Section of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03, and is not waivable, and may be raised despite guilty plea. See State v. Aniton, 183 Wis.2d 125, 129, 515 N.W.2d 302, 303 (1994). Wisconsin criminal "circuit court's subject-matter jurisdiction attaches when the complaint is filed ... the circuit court lacks criminal subject-matter jurisdiction only where the complaint does not charge an offense known to law." See Aniton, 183 Wis.2d at 129, 515 N.W.2d at 303. "Thus, whether the circuit court has jurisdiction over a particular criminal complaint presents a question of statutory and constitutional interpretation." See State v. LeQue, 150 Wis.2d 256, 262, 442 N.W.2d 494, 497 (Wis.App. 1989). This Court in a brief discussion on criminal complaints in Wisconsin stated in United States v. Shannon, 94 F.3d 1065, 1087-89 (7th Cir. 1996), acknowledging that the "complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged ... Because the complaint in Wisconsin and other jurisdiction is the initial charging instrument in a felony proceeding."

B. The Enactment, What Should Have Happened And What Did not Happened In This Case.

Here, in this present case, at the outset [initial appearance], see (Exh-H at 57a-65a), where the State (prosecutor) forcefully brought Ricardo Glover before a criminal circuit court in chains and shackles from a warrantless arrest and detention by police to answer no criminal offense. Therein the said proceeding, the prosecutor informs the criminal circuit court that she did not file her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. 968.01(2)) against Mr. Glover charging him with a crime against the laws of Wisconsin, but requested that the criminal circuit court set bail on Mr. Glover contrary to the Fourteenth Amendment and its codifications to hold him. Id.

The criminal circuit court was duty bound by the fundamental and threshold principles of subject-matter jurisdictional law, personal jurisdictional law, constitutional law, and statutory law to dismiss the unconstitutional and unlawful proceeding and order Mr. Glover's immediate release. Forth coming is an enactment of what should had occurred, the criminal circuit court should had informed the prosecutor and did the forth coming, because it lacked jurisdiction at the outset:

The criminal circuit court at the outset should had stated and concluded the followings: We are at the initial appearance proceeding, which is a jurisdictional, constitutional and statutory proceeding, where the court has to perform now, not later four (mandatory) duties, non-discretionary functions, which are:

> 1) to determine does the court have subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate a criminal case (charge or charges) filed against Mr. Glover therein the State's (prosecutor's) written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)); 2) to determine does the court have personal jurisdictional over the person of Mr. Glover from the State's (prosecutor's) written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)); 3) for the court to make a constitutional judicial determination does probable cause exist therein the State's (prosecutor's) written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) for Mr. Glover warrantless arrest and detention; and, 4) for the court to set bail on Mr. Glover from the charge or charges filed against him therein the State's (prosecutor's) written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)).

However, none can ever be perform now by the court, because the court's jurisdictional power has not been invoked by the State (prosecutor) to act and proceed hereinafter [to adjudicate], no criminal action exists before the court against Mr. Glover, none whatsoever. This proceeding (case) must be dismissed with prejudice.

Here, at the outset of the criminal proceeding, it was the State (prosecutor's) duty to file charges against an individual who she believed committed a crime. However, no crime has been committed in this case that the court is aware of, because the State (prosecutor) did not filed her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) on the court against Mr. Glover charging him with a crime. In Wisconsin, Chapter 968 – "COMMENCEMENT OF CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS," mandates that a criminal complaint be filed to commencement criminal proceedings against the accused in the circuit courts. Wis. § 968.01(2) complaint provides: "The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged." No written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) has been filed on the court by the State (prosecutor) against Mr. Glover charging him with a crime:

> 1) to invoke the court's subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate a criminal proceeding pursuant Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin and Wis. § 753.03 against Mr. Glover;[1] 2) to invoke the court's personal jurisdictional power over the person of Mr. Glover; [2] 3) for the court to make a judicial determination of probable cause exist therein the complaint for Mr. Glover's warrantless arrest and detention; [3] and 4) for the court to set bail on Mr. Glover for a charged offense. [4]

---

[1] A circuit court does not have subject-matter jurisdiction over a nonexistent offense. See State v. Christensen, 110 Wis.2d 538, 542, 329 N.W.2d 382, 383 (1983).

A court's subject matter jurisdiction is invoked by the filing of a complaint. The filing of a valid

---

[2] There is no relationship between Mr. Glover and a criminal complaint for the court to acquire personal jurisdiction over his person. See State v. Smith, 131 Wis.2d 220, 239, 388 N.W.2d 601, 609 (Wis. 1986).

[3] No charge existed for the court to find probable cause for Mr. Glover's warrantless arrest and detention as it did not, because the prosecutor did not file the written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) against Mr. Glover charging him with a crime. The "complaint at this point need not contain all the allegations of fact which if would be necessary to convict. The text to be applied at this stage is the same as that which is required for issuance of a warrant:'  enough information [shall] be presented to the commissioner to enable him to make the judgment that the charges are not capricious and are sufficiently supported to justify bringing into play the further steps of the criminal process.' Jaben v. United States, (1965), 381 U.S. 214, 224, 85 S.Ct. 1365, 1371...." See State ex rel. Cullen v. Ceci, 45 Wis.2d 432, 442, 173 N.W.2d 175, 179 (Wis. 1970). "The face of the complaint and any affidavits annexed thereto must recite probable cause for the defendant's detention." Id.

[4] The court cannot not set bail on Mr. Glover for a nonexistent offense, only a charged offense therein the prosecutor's complaint. See Wis. § § § 969.02(1), 969.03(1) and 970.02(2).

complaint is therefore a mandatory prerequisite to a court's acquiring jurisdiction, subject-matter and personal. The defense of subject-matter jurisdiction can never be waived. Even, the absence of the criminal complaint filed here cannot be waived, even by a plea of no contest or even guilty. Where as here, at the outset [initial appearance], the complaint is not filed; the conviction would be void ab initio for want of subject matter jurisdiction later if the court attempts to adjudicate now.

The first and fundamental question here, at the outset [initial appearance] is that of jurisdiction, "[t]he requirement that jurisdiction be established as a threshold matter ... is 'inflexible and without exception.'" See Mansfield, C. & L.M.R. Co. v. Swan, 111 U.S. 379, 382, 4 S.Ct. 510, 511 (1884). A party may not waive a defect in subject-matter jurisdiction. See United States v. Griffin, 303 U.S. 226, 229 (1938). It is well-settled that a court may raise the question of subject-matter jurisdiction at any time either on the motion of a party litigant or sua sponte. Id.

Where as here, at the outset of this proceeding [initial appearance], the State (prosecutor) has forcefully brought Mr. Glover before this court in chains and shackles from a warrantless arrest and detention, the law mandates Mr. Glover be afforded due process of law, equal protection of the law, fundamental fairness and non-deprivation of his liberty pursuant to the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, which is afforded to all citizens of the United States. Where as here, at the outset, Mr. Glover has been arrested without a warrant and has remained in custody, the codifications of the Fourteenth Amendment, mandate:

> 1) Wis. § 968.04(1)(a) – Warrant or summons on complaint, which provides in relevant part: "When an accused has been arrested without a warrant and is in custody ... no warrant shall be issued and the complaint shall be filed forthwith with a judge;" and 2) Wis. § 970.01(2) – Initial appearance before a judge, which provides: "When a person is arrested without a warrant and brought before a judge, a complaint shall be filed forthwith." Wis. § 968.01(2) complaint provides: "The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged."

It was the duty of the State (prosecutor) to file her timely complaint against Mr. Glover if he had committed a crime, since the State (prosecutor) has not filed her timely jurisdictional accusatory instrument (complaint) no crime exist before the court and the court has no subject-matter jurisdictional power. In addition, criminal subject-matter jurisdiction cannot be conferred upon the court by consent. Kelly v. State, 54 Wis.2d 475, 479, 195 N.W.2d 457, 459 (Wis. 1972). Nor can subject-matter jurisdiction be waived. Id.

Here, at the outset of the proceeding, the court cannot provide Mr. Glover with a copy of the written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. 968.01(2)) and inform him of the charge against him and penalties for that charge as mandated by law, see Wis. § 970.02(1)(a), because the prosecutor did not filed her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint,' Wis. § 968.01(2)) on the court charging him with a crime to invoke the court's jurisdictional power. "Without jurisdiction the court cannot proceed at all in any cause. Jurisdiction is power to declare the law, and when it ceases to exist, the only function remaining to the court is that of announcing the fact and dismissing the cause." See Ex parte McCardle, 7 U.S. 506, 514, 19 L.Ed. 264 (1868).

Without filing the written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) on the court by the prosecution now, at the outset [initial appearance] of this case against Mr. Glover from his warrantless arrest and detention in according to the time limitation period provided by Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) and 970.01(2), in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a), charging that he committed an offense against the laws of Wisconsin, no criminal action exists. Wis. § 753.03 –Jurisdiction of circuit courts, provides in relevant part: "the circuit courts have power to hear and determine, within their respective circuits, all civil and criminal actions," no action exist before this court. The circuit courts are created by written law, and their subject-matter jurisdiction is defined by written law, see Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03. This court "cannot transcend that jurisdiction. It is unnecessary to state the reasoning on which the opinion is found, because it has been repeatedly given by this Court; and with decisions hereto rendered on this point, no member of the bench has, even for an instant, been dissatisfied." See Ex parte Bollman, 4 Cranch 75, 93, 2 L.Ed. 554 (1807).

Where as here, the prosecutor's failure to file her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) at the outset [initial appearance] in accordance with the prescribed time limitation period of Wis. § § § 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) and 970.02(1)(a) at the outset of this proceeding [initial appearance], has deprived the court of subject-matter jurisdiction pursuant to Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03 as well as personal jurisdiction, in addition because the State's (prosecutor's) error is one of jurisdictional magnitude, the prosecutor has failed "to clear a jurisdictional hurdle" which "can never be 'harmless' or waived by [the] court." See Torres v. Oakland Scavenger Co., 487 U.S. 312, 317 n.3 (1988).

Having said the following, the court lacks subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate upon a none existent criminal action, and therefore the unconstitutional and unlawful proceeding is dismissed with prejudice for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction, and Mr. Glover is discharged immediately from the same, the unconstitutional and unlawful confinement and imprisonment of his person.

As submitted above, the criminal circuit court was duty bound to dismiss the unconstitutional and unlawful proceeding and discharge Mr. Glover from the same, but failed to do so. This is the end of the enactment.

C. The On-Point Cases To Mr. Glover's Case, Creating Extraordinary Circumstances And In The Interest Of Justice For The Court To Rescind Its' Original Order And Recall The Mandate Thereof

Wisconsin and Ohio have the same identical commencement of criminal proceedings, the filing of the complaint. In Wisconsin's Chapter 968 – "COMMENCEMENT OF CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS," mandates that a criminal complaint,[5] not the information to be filed to commence criminal proceedings against an accused in a criminal courts. See Wis. § 968.01(2) complaint provides, "The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged."

The Ohio criminal courts have the same identical commencement of criminal proceedings

---

[5] In addition, other States as Wisconsin and Ohio use a criminal complaint as its initial charging instruments as well in a criminal case. See Commonwealth v. Hatchin, 709 A.2d 405, 1998 Pa. Super LEXIS 117 (Pennsylvania 1998) (the criminal complaint, not the information charged the defendant with a crime, thus, the trial court had subject-matter jurisdiction over the matter); Commonwealth v. Khorey, 521 Pa. 1, n.10, 555 A.2d 100, 106 n.10 (Pennsylvania 1989) (Although a guilty plea results in the waiver of most defenses, an objection to subject-matter jurisdiction can never be waived); State v. Jelliff, 251 N.W.2d 1, 1977 N.D. LEXIS 235 (North Dakota 19977) (a criminal complaint, supported by an affidavit of probable cause charged the defendant with an offense).

against the accused as Wisconsin, mandating that a criminal complaint be filed. See Ohio Criminal Rule 3 ("The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged."). "[A] defect that deprives a court of subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived by an accused. The absence of the criminal complaint cannot be waived by a plea of no contest or even guilty, since any conviction resulting from an invalid complaint is a nullity." See e.g., Ohio v. Bishop, 1993 Ohio App. LEXIS 5799, *2 (Ohio App. 1993, unpublished; Exhibit-L at 84a-88a, attached to this petition) (citing, State v. Green, 48 Ohio App.3d 121, 548 N.E.2d 334 (Ohio 1988); State v. Miller, 47 Ohio App.3d 113, 114, 547 N.E.2d 399, 401 (Ohio 1988) (In the absence of a sufficient formal accusation, a court acquires no jurisdiction whatsoever, and if it assumes jurisdiction, a trial and conviction are a nullity ... the complaint is the jurisdictional instrument of the municipal court.").

The State of Ohio, uses a criminal complaint as its initial charging instrument as Wisconsin. See e.g., State v. Sharp, 2009 Ohio 1854, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561 (Ohio App. 2009), where the Ohio Court of Appeals stated:

> "In the absence of a sufficient formal accusation, a Court acquires no jurisdiction whatsoever, and if it assumes jurisdiction, a trial and conviction are a nullity ... The complaint is the jurisdictional instrument of the municipal court."

See Sharp, 2009 Ohio 1854, ¶14, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561, 5. "A court's subject matter jurisdiction is invoked by the filing of a complaint." See Id. "The filing of a valid complaint is therefore a necessary prerequisite to a court's acquiring jurisdiction." 2009 Ohio 1854, ¶14, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561, 5-6. "We review the determination of subject matter jurisdiction de novo, without any deference to the trial court." See Sharp, 2009 Ohio 1854, ¶14, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561, 6. The Sharp court further stated that,

> "[T]he defense of subject-matter jurisdiction can never be waived ... The absence of the criminal complaint cannot be waived by a plea of no contest or even guilty, since any conviction resulting from an invalid complaint is a nullity. State v. Bishop, (1993), Clark App. No. 3070, 1993 Ohio App. LEXIS 5799, unreported. The question of subject matter jurisdiction is so basic that it can be raised at any stage before the trial court or any appellate court, or even collaterally in subsequent and separate proceedings.
>
> * * * * * *
>
> [I]f the complaint were not properly filed, the convictions are void ab initio for want of subject matter jurisdiction, as the jurisdiction of the Mount Vernon Municipal Court was never invoked.

> Further, appellant is not barred from raising the issue at this stage in the proceedings, as subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived."

See Sharp, 2009 Ohio 1854, ¶15 & ¶17, 2009 Ohio App. LEXIS 1561, 6, 7; City of Zanesvill v. Rouse, 2009 Ohio 2689, 2009 App. LEXIS 2278 (Ohio 2009). In Ohio, as in Wisconsin, under Ohio Criminal Rule 3, provides, "The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged." A defect that deprives a court of subject-matter jurisdiction cannot be waived by an accused. The absence of the criminal complaint cannot be waived by a plea of no contest or even guilty, since any conviction resulting from an invalid complaint is a nullity. See e.g., State v. Green, 48 Ohio App.3d 121, 548 N.E.2d 334 (Ohio 1988).

"A court can acquire no jurisdiction to try a person for a criminal offense unless he has been charged with the commission of the particular offense and charged in the particular form and mode required by law. If that is wanting, his trial and conviction is a nullity, for no person can be deprived of either life, liberty, or property without due process of law." See e.g., People v. Walley, 21 Misc.2d 623, 626, 202 N.Y.S.2d 859, 862-863 (New York 1959); see also Stewart v. State, 41 Ohio App. 351, 353-354, 181 N.E. 11, 112 (Ohio Ct. App. 1932, unpublished) (same); Morse v. People, 43 Col. 118, 122, 95 P. 285, 286-287 (Colorado 1908) (same) (quoting Dykeman v. Budd, 3 Wis. 640, 643 (Wis. 1854)).

"The general rule applicable in criminal proceedings ... is that by pleading guilty, the defendant ... waives all nonjurisdictional defects." See State v. Norris, 2004 UT App. 267, ¶4, 97 P.3d 732, 735-736 (Utah App. 2004). "Subject matter jurisdiction is the power and authority of the court to determine a controversy and without which it cannot proceed." Id. at ¶5, 97 P.3d at 736. "When subject matter jurisdiction is an issue, 'it is the duty of this court to satisfy not only of its own jurisdiction, but also that of the law courts in a cause under review.'" Id. (quoting EEOC v. Chicago Club, 86 F.3d 1423, 1428 (7th Cir. 1996) (citing Mitchell v. Maurer, 293 U.S. 237, 244, 55 .Ct. 162 (1934)).

If a court has no jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the criminal conviction, the defendant's conviction in that court is void. See Wright v. State, 2 Tenn. Crim. App. 95, 451 S.W.2d 707, 709 (Tenn. Crim. App. 1969). "If the Court rendering a judgment sought to be attacked collaterally is one of general jurisdiction, there is a presumption that nothing shall be intended to be out of its jurisdiction except that which appears upon the face of the judgment or in the record of the case in which that judgment is rendered." See Bomar v. State ex rel. Stewart, 201 Tenn. 480, 483, 300 S.W.2d 885, 887 (Tenn. 1957); see also State v. Ritchie, 20 S.W.3d 624, 631, 2000 Tenn. LEXIS 156, 19 (Tenn. 2000) ("the lack of jurisdiction must appear upon the face of the judgment or in the record of the case in which the judgment was rendered.").

Furthermore, if it becomes apparent to a court reviewing the judgment or record of the criminal circuit court [trial court] that the criminal circuit court [trial court] lacked subject-matter jurisdiction, then the reviewing court shall vacate the judgment and dismiss the case. See State v. Seagraves, 837 S.W.2d 615, 616 (Tenn. Crim. App. 1992); see also Ex parte Nielsen, 131 U.S. 176, 183 (1889) ("if [the trial court's] want of power appears on the face of the record of his condemnation, whether in the indictment or elsewhere, the court which has authority to issue the writ [of habeas corpus] is bound to release him.").

The court in Honomichl, supra, stated: "Subject matter jurisdiction cannot be conferred by agreement, consent, or waiver. State v. Higgins. 145 N.W.2d 478 (N.D. 1966); see also, State v. Cochrun, 328 N.W.2d 271 (S.D. 1983). A reviewing court is required to consider the issue of subject matter jurisdiction even where it was not raised below in order where to avoid an unwarranted exercise of judicial authority. State v. Wiese, 201 N.W.2d 734 (Ia. 1972). As we held in Mee, 67 S.D. 335, 292 N.W.2d 875, subject matter jurisdiction cannot be acquired by estoppel." See Honomichl, supra, 333 N.W.2d at 799, 1983 S.D. LEXIS at 7.

D. No Provision Of The Constitution Or Statute, Or Both, Gave The Criminal Circuit Court Jurisdictional Power To Adjudicate At The Outset, [Initial Appearance], To Condemn And Enter A Judgment Against Mr. Glover.

The facts of this case are not in dispute; they have been taken directly from the record. On May 29, 1989, S.B. stated to Racine, Wisconsin police that while she and her brother-in-law (Ricardo Glover) were returning from Kenosha, Wisconsin to Racine, Wisconsin looking for her mother, Glover parked his vehicle and touched her crotch and buttock area while they were in his car, see (Exh-F at 52a-53a). However, S.B. informed Sgt. Grayhart of the Racine Police Department that no sexual conduct or contact took place on the part of Mr. Glover.

Subsequently, police took S.B. to Racine St. Luke's Hospital Emergency Room, Doctor G.L. Brown attending physician observed and talked with S.B., he reported as follows:

> A female involved in an assault, which she was supposed to be taken over to her grandmother's home [in Kenosha County] by her brother-in-law.
>
> When they could not find her grandmother there, they were returning to patient's sister's home [in Racine County] so she could spend the night. Then the brother-in-law took her to a bridge and, she states, attempted to sexually molest her, getting very close to her, placing his hands on her crotch and on her chest. When he could not get her jumpsuit off easily, apparently aborted his attempt to molest her and decided that he did not want her talking about it, so he took a torn towel and "tied" her hands together behind her back, told her that she wasn't going to be able to > tell anybody about this and proceeded to stop on a bridge overlying a river with several feet of water in it, threw her off the bridge approximately 15-20 feet to the water below. Patient was able to "untie" her hand and escape.

See (Exh-F at 52a-53a). But, the State prosecutor's very own witnesses, Michael Blalke and Cruz Jamaillo testified under oath contrary to S.B. "untying" her hands from behind her back and escaping, both, Mr. Blake and Mr. Jamaillo stated under oath that when S.B. "appeared" in their home her hands were "tied" behind her back and Mr. Jamaillo was the one who "untied" her hands from behind her back. S.B. stated that she "untied" her hands from behind her back and went to seek help was untrue as both witnesses testified under oath. The only way the incident could have occurred is that S.B. walked into the water with her hands freely ("untied"), and walked out of the water with someone assisting her in "tying" her hands behind her back when she was wet. As the evidence clearly revealed, S.B. was not thrown over a bridge.

Dr. Brown's observation of and discussion with S.B., surrounding the facts of the alleged incident continues, he reported further that S.B. stated:

> She scraped up her leg during the fall, landed primarily on her bottom. Absolutely denies any pain at this point. Seems to be in relatively good spirits. Is able to describe the incident consistently between those interviewers and relative good detail.... Patient absolutely denies that any actual sexual contact took place.

See id.. From S.B.'s statements alone to Dr. Brown and Racine police along, without any investigation id., police made a deliberate plan to arrest Mr. Glover without a warrant. Subsequently, at 6:00 a.m., on May 29, 1989, Racine police made a warrantless arrest of Mr. Glover, placing him in custody and did not release him from their custody, and stated that on the same date they obtained a statement from Mr. Glover and other evidence during the warrantless arrest and detention of Mr. Glover. The statement police allegedly obtained, Mr. Glover never read it, nor signed it, nor knowledge the correctness of it, that statement entered into evidence against Mr. Glover was not his own statement.

S.B. made another statement to police and signed it as well while Mr. Glover was in Racine police custody, informing police that her initial statement was untrue. This signed statement, see (Exh-G at 54a-56a), of S.B. contradicts her initial statement to Dr. Brown and Racine police, see (Exh-F at 52a-53a) to get Mr. Glover arrested, and shows that Mr. Glover was warrantlessly arrested and jailed falsely, in fact, it shows the untruthfulness of S.B. See (Exh-F; Exh-G at 54a-56a). On the same date, May 29, 1989, Officer Cindy Cros of the Kenosha Police Department reported that S.B. informed her that while she was spending the night in Racine at her sister's home, her sister is married to Ricardo Glover, that she was awaken at approximately 1:00 a.m. by Glover on this date and was driven back to Kenosha to her residence by Glover; nobody was home at S.B.'s residence except her grandmother. S.B. was held with a knife against her throat by Glover and ordered to take her clothes off or she would be killed. She complied and she lay on top of her mother's bed with Glover on top of her naked. S.B. "states that intercourse did not occur but Glover ejaculated on the sheet." See (Exh-G at 55a). As the examination of the bedsheets revealed: "[n]o semen was detected on the panties, leggings or bedsheet." See (Exh-I at 66a-71a). S.B. was untruthful once again.

On May 30, 1989, the Racine District Attorney's Office (prosecutor) forcefully brought Mr. Glover before a criminal circuit court for an initial appearance in chains and shackles from his warrantless arrest and detention by police pursuant to the Fourteenth Amendment's due process clause and equal protection clause, and the Fourteenth Amendment's codifications, Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) and 970.01(2) in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a), to:

> 1) invoke the criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate a criminal case (charge or charges) filed against Mr. Glover therein the prosecutor's written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2));
>
> 2) to invoke the criminal circuit court's personal jurisdictional power over the person of Mr. Glover from her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2));

3) for the criminal circuit court to make a constitutional judicial determination does probable cause exist from the her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) for Mr. Glover warrantless arrest and detention; and,

4) for the criminal circuit court to set bail on Mr. Glover from the charge or charges filed against him therein her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)).

Here, at the outset [initial appearance] of this case, contrary to the Fourteenth Amendment's due process of law and equal protection of the law, and it's codification, Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a), and Wis. § 970.01(2) in conjunction with 970.02(1)(a), the prosecutor did not filed her timely written mandatory and jurisdiction accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2))[6] against Mr. Glover charging him

---

[6] In addition, the prosecutor, an officer of the court stated to the criminal circuit court without filing her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) against Mr. Glover that he "raped" S.B, see (Exh-H at 57a-65a). This was intentional misconduct on the part of the prosecuting attorney because she knew that Dr. Brown's report with a crime in accordance with the prescribed time limitation period of Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) (Mr. Glover was arrested without a warrant on May 29, 1989 and is in police custody, no warrant shall be issued for him and the complaint charging him with an offense shall be filed now or at his initial appearance on the criminal circuit court by the prosecutor) and 970.01(2) (Mr. Glover was arrested without a warrant and on May 30, 1989 brought before an initial appearance hearing court, the complaint shall be filed on the initial appearance hearing court against him now) in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a) (at this initial appearance hearing the court shall inform Mr. Glover of the charge against him and shall furnish him with a copy of the complaint which shall contain the possible penalties for the offenses set forth therein. In the case he is charged with a felony, the judge shall also inform him of the penalties for that felony which he is charged) to invoke the criminal circuit court's subject-matter jurisdictional power and personal jurisdiction power to act and proceed at the outset pursuant to Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03 in this case. See (Exh-H at 57a-65a). In addition, the Wisconsin Legislature made no provision therein Wis. § § § 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) or 970.02(1)(a), for the criminal circuit court to allow the prosecutor time to extend the filing of her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. 968.01(2)) after Mr. Glover's initial appearance to invoke its subject-matter jurisdiction.

---

stated that S.B. was not raped and "injury free," see (Exh-F at 52a-53a) and Officer Cros' reported stated "that intercourse did not occur," see (Exh-G at 55a; Exh I at 66a-71a).

Mr. Glover's constitutional rights to due process of law, equal protection of the law, fundamental fairness and non-deprivation of his liberty pursuant to the Fourteenth Amendment and his statutory rights, which are codifications of the Fourteenth Amendment, Wis. § § § 968.04(1)(a), 970.01(2) and 970.02(1)(a), were violated,[7] when the criminal circuit court failed to dismiss the case against him for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction, adjudicating on unlawful "hypothetical jurisdiction," and setting an unconstitutional and unlawful bail on him of Ten Thousand Dollars, ($10,000.00), holding him for the nonexistent offense of "further investigation." Id. Here, at the outset [initial appearance], the accusatory instrument (complaint) was not filed on the criminal circuit court in accordance with the prescribed time limitation period, the conviction and judgment thereof is void ab initio for want of subject matter jurisdiction, as the jurisdiction of the criminal circuit court was never invoked, as subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived. In addition, when the prosecutor failed to file her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument (complaint) against Mr. Glover at the outset of the criminal case [initial appearance], see (Exh-H at 57a-65a), the prosecutor failed "to clear a jurisdictional hurdle" which "can never be 'harmless'

---

[7] This was a continuous violation of Mr. Glover's Fourteenth Amendment rights to due process of law, equal protection of the law, fundamental fairness and deprivation of his liberty that could not be waived, because it "went to the power of the State to bring him into court to answer [no] charge brought against him." See Blackledge v. Perry, 417 U.S. 21, 30 (1974) (emphasis added in brackets).

or waived by a court." See Torres., 487 U.S. at 317 n.3.

The criminal circuit court lacked subject-matter jurisdictional power to adjudicate at the outset [initial appearance] pursuant to Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03, because the written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) was not filed on it by the prosecutor in accordance with the prescribed time limitation period of Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) (Mr. Glover was arrested without a warrant on May 29, 1989 and is in police custody, no warrant shall be issued for him and the complaint charging him with an offense shall be filed now or at his initial appearance on the criminal circuit court by the prosecutor) and 970.01(2) (Mr. Glover was arrested without a warrant and on May 30, 1989 brought before an initial appearance hearing court, the complaint shall be filed on the initial appearance hearing court against him now) in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a) (at this initial appearance hearing the court shall inform Mr. Glover of the charge against him and shall furnish him with a copy of the complaint which shall contain the possible penalties for the offenses set forth therein. In the case he is charged with a felony, the judge shall also inform him of the penalties for that felony which he is charged), because "[w]ithout jurisdiction the court cannot proceed at all in any cause. Jurisdiction is power to declare the law, and when it ceases to exist, the only function remaining to the court is that of announcing the fact and dismissing the cause." See Steel Co. v. Citizens for a Better Environment, 523 U.S. 83, 94 (1998) (quoting Ex parte McCardle, 7 Wall. 506, 54, 19 L.Ed. 264 (1868)). "The requirement that jurisdiction be established as a threshold matter ... is 'inflexible and without exception.'" See Steel Co., 523 U.S. at 94-95 (quoting Mansfield, C. & L.M.R. Co. v. Swan, 111 U.S. 379, 382, 4 S.Ct. 510, 511, 28 L.Ed. 462 (1884)).

The criminal circuit court at the outset of this criminal case [initial appearance] acted and proceeded thereinafter on unconstitutional and unlawful "hypothetical jurisdiction," see Steel Co., 523 U.S. at 84, 94, no written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint", Wis. § 968.01(2)) was filed on it by the prosecutor to invoke it subject-matter jurisdictional power, see (Exh-H at 57a-65a). The defect was jurisdictional, not only because no written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint", Wis. § 968.01(2)) was filed against Mr. Glover charging him with an offense for the criminal circuit court to adjudicate, but also the defect was a violation against the scope of power granted to the criminal circuit court to adjudicate, at the outset [initial appearance] of the criminal case, see (Exh-H at 57a-65a). See Steel Co., 523 U.S. at 101-102 ("For a court to pronounce upon the meaning or constitutionality of a state or federal law when it has no jurisdiction to do so is, by very definition, for a court to act ultra vires.").

As the Supreme Court held,

> "courts which are created by written law, and whose jurisdiction is defined by written law, cannot transcend that > jurisdiction. It is unnecessary to state the reasoning on which the opinion is found, because it has been repeatedly given by this Court; and with decisions hereto rendered on this point, no member of the bench has, even for an instant, been dissatisfied."

See Bollman, 4 Cranch at 93, 2 L.Ed. 554. The lack of subject-matter jurisdiction of the criminal circuit court at the outset of the criminal proceeding [initial appearance], see (Exh-H at 57a-65a), involved its power "to hear a case, can never be forfeited or waived." See United States v. Cotton, 535 U.S. 625, 630 (2002). The criminal circuit court at the outset of the criminal case was without the written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) filed on it by the prosecutor, did not make the constitutional judicial determination that probable cause existed for Mr. Glover's warrantless arrest and detention. The law mandated that the written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument:

> "[C]omplaint at this point need not contain all the allegations of fact which if would be necessary to convict. The text to be applied at this stage is the same as that which is required for issuance of a warrant:'  enough information [shall] be presented to the commissioner to enable him to make the judgment that the charges are not capricious and are sufficiently supported to justify bringing into play the further steps of the > criminal process.' Jaben v. United states, (1965), 381 U.S. 214, 224, 85 S.Ct. 1365, 1371 ... The face of the complaint and any affidavits annexed thereto must recite probable cause for the defendant's detention."

See Cullen, supra 45 Wis.2d at 442, 173 N.W.2d at 179. No charge existed for the criminal circuit court to find probable cause for Mr. Glover's warrantless arrest and detention as it did not, nor to set a Ten Thousand Dollar, $10,000.00 bail on Mr. Glover as it did to hold him, because the prosecutor did not file her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) against Mr. Glover charging him with a crime, see (Exh-H at 57a-65a). The criminal circuit court could not set bail on Mr. Glover for a nonexistent offense, the law mandates that the criminal circuit court can only set bail for a charged offense therein a written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)). See Wis. § § § 969.02(1), 969.03(1) and 970.02(2).

On January 8, 1990, jury trial commenced, but ended in a plea. Mr. Glover pled not because he was guilty, but because he feared the criminal circuit court judge. See (Affidavit In Support, attached to this document as Exh-M at 89a-97a).

The criminal circuit court lacking subject-matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction from the outset [initial appearance] of the criminal case, without jurisdiction being conferred on it by law, which amounted to no more than consent and hypothetical jurisdiction, see (Exh-H at 57a-65a), on February 22, 1990, the criminal circuit court that lacked subject-matter jurisdiction to sentenced Mr. Glover to serve the maximum period of 45 years imprisonment and confinement in the Wisconsin Department of Corrections. See (Exh-J at 72a-74a).

40a

The criminal circuit court, which sentenced Mr. Glover, was therefore without jurisdiction, and its judgment is void, see (Exh-J at 72a-74a). The judgment of conviction Mr. Glover is imprisoned and confined thereunder is "absolutely void for want of jurisdiction in the court that pronounced it," see (Exh-J at 72a-74a, Judgment of Conviction, Case No. 89CF402), "because such jurisdiction was absent at the beginning ... of the proceeding[]," see (Exh-H at 57a-65a, Initial Appearance Transcript, Case No. 89CF402). See Frank v. Mangum, 237 U.S. 309, 327 (1915).

The on-point cases to Mr. Glover's case presented above in section 3C of this petition at pages 24-29 and respectfully incorporated herein by reference, creating extraordinary circumstances exists and in the interest of justice for the Court to rescind its' original order and recall the mandate thereof. In addition, the Sharp, supra, Green, supra, and Miller, supra, cases cited are directly on-point to Mr. Glover's case. The fundamental and threshold principles of subject-matter jurisdictional law are clear for all courts. The corollary to the rule is consent, collusion, laches, waiver, or estoppel cannot confer that subject-matter jurisdiction otherwise lacking. Subject matter jurisdiction cannot be thus conferred irrespective of whether the consent was the result of an honest mistake or otherwise:

> A plea of guilty or no contest "waives all nonjurisdictional defects and defenses," and that "'[j]urisdictional defects' can involve the court's personal jurisdiction over the person of the defendant or the court's jurisdiction over the subject matter of the proceeding." See State v. Dietzen, 164 Wis.2d 205, 210, 474 N.W.2d 753, 755 (Wis.App. 1991); see also State v. Cvorovic, 158 Wis.2d 630, 634, 462 N.W.2d 897, 898 (Wis.App. 1990). "Subject matter jurisdiction is conferred on the court by law; it cannot be conferred by consent, nor can it be waived." See Dietzen, 164 Wis.2d at 210-211, 474 N.W.2d at 755.

When the prosecutor did not file her written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) against Mr. Glover at the outset [initial appearance] on the criminal circuit court from his warrantless arrest and detention in accordance with the prescribed time limitation period, Wis. § § 968.04(1)(a) and 970.01(2) in conjunction with Wis. § 970.02(1)(a), what occurred is, > a) the prosecutor deprived the criminal circuit court of subject-matter jurisdiction pursuant to Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03, the prosecutor

"failure to clear a jurisdiction hurdle can never be 'harmless' or waived by a court." See Torres, supra, 487 U.S. at 317 n.3;

and,

b) the prosecutor deprived the criminal circuit court of subject-matter jurisdiction pursuant to Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution and Wis. § 753.03, the State's (prosecutor's) error is one of jurisdictional magnitude, it cannot rely on any excuse for its lack of compliance with the statute's limitations. See Bowles, 551 U.S. at 213 (citing Arbaugh, 546 U.S. at 513-514, 126 S.Ct. 1235, 163 L.Ed.2d 1097).

Furthermore,

the criminal circuit court had no power to "delayed" or "stayed" the filing of the written mandatory and jurisdictional accusatory instrument ("complaint," Wis. § 968.01(2)) at the outset [initial appearance], where the defendant has been brought before from a warrantlessly arrested and detention in chains and shackles, to allow the State (prosecutor) time to file an out-of-time accusatory instrument [complaint] to invoke its subject-matter jurisdiction. Such a "delay" or "stay" by the criminal > circuit court carries no weight, because a criminal circuit court has "no authority to create equitable exceptions to jurisdictional requirements."

See Bowles, 551 U.S. at 214.

RELIEF SOUGHT

Extraordinary circumstances exist and in the interest of justice for this Court to rescind its original order denying Mr. Glover habeas corpus relief and recall the mandate thereof. Mr. Glover was deprived of his liberty without due process and equal protection of the law, contrary to the Fourteenth Amendment and its' codifications. The criminal circuit court lacked subject-matter jurisdiction to condemn him and entered a judgment of conviction against him. Mr. Glover asks that this Court discharge him from the same immediately, instead of sanctioning him.

VERIFICATION

I, Ricardo Glover declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on this 21st day of July, 2010.

Respectfully submitted,

"s/"

Ricardo Glover, Affiant-Layman
Prisoner ID No. 207606
Oshkosh Correctional Institution
Post Office Box 3310
Oshkosh, Wisconsin 54903-3310

INDEX TO EXHIBITS

Exhibit-A	Article VII, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution – Circuit court: jurisdiction. Reformatted from page A1 to 48a
Exhibit-B	Wisconsin Chapter 753.03, Circuit Court, Wis. § 753.03 – Jurisdiction of circuit courts. Reformatted from page B1 to 48a
Exhibit-C	Wisconsin Chapter 968, Commencement Of Criminal Proceedings, Wis. § 968.01(2) – Complaint and Wis. § 968.04(1)(a) – Warrant or summons on complaint Reformatted from pages C1-C2 to 49a
Exhibit-D	Wisconsin Chapter 969, Bail And Other Conditions Of Release, Wis. § 969.02(1)– Release of defendants charged with Misdemeanors and Wis. § 969.03(1) – Release of defendants charged with felonies. Reformatted from page D1-D2 to 50a

Exhibit-E	Wisconsin Chapter 970 Criminal Procedure Preliminary Proceedings, Wis. § 970.01(2) – Initial appearance before a judge; Wis. § 970.02(1)(a) – Duty of a judge at the initial appearance; and Wis. § 970.02(2) – Duty of a judge at the initial appearance. Reformatted from page E1 to 51a
Exhibit-F	Emergency Room Report, St. Luke's Hospital, Racine, Wisconsin, Doctor G.L. Brown (Dated: May 29, 1989). Reformatted from pages A1 to 52a-53a
Exhibit-G	Kenosha, Wisconsin, Police Report, Officer Cindy Cros, (Dated: May 29, 1989). Reformatted from pages G1-G3 to 54a-56a
Exhibit-H	Initial Appearance Transcript, Racine, Wisconsin, State v. Glover, Case No. 89CF402 (Dated: May 30, 1989). Reformatted from pages H1-H7 to 57a-65a
Exhibit-I	Laboratory Findings, Wisconsin State Crime Laboratory, (Dated: July 31, 1989 and July 6, 1989). Reformatted from pages I1-I3 to 66a-71a

Exhibit-J	Judgment of Conviction, Racine, Wisconsin, State v. Glover, Case No. 89CF402 (Entered: February 22, 1990). Reformatted from page J1 to 72a-74a
Exhibit-K	State of Wisconsin v. Christopher L. Russell, 251 Wis.2d 482, 640 N.W.2d 565, 2002 Wisc. App. LEXIS 54 (Wis.App. 2002, unpublished opinion). Reformatted from pages K1-K4 to 75a-83a
Exhibit-L	State of Ohio v. Billy Ray Bishop, 1993 Ohio App. LEXIS 5799 (Ohio App. 1993, unpublished opinion). Reformatted from pages L1-L3 to 84a-88a
Exhibit-M	Affidavit In Support of Petition from Ricardo Glover (Dated: July 19, 2010). Reformatted from pages M1-M7 to 89a-a-97a
Exhibit-N	Order, United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit denying Habeas Corpus Appeal (Entered: November 25, 1997). Reformatted from page N1-N9 to 98a-111a

Article 7, Section 8 of the Wisconsin Constitution
(1989-1990)

Circuit court: jurisdiction. [As amended April 1977] "Except as otherwise provided by law, the circuit court shall have original jurisdiction in all matters civil and criminal within this state and such appellate jurisdiction in the circuit as the legislature may prescribe by law. The circuit court may issue all writs necessary in aid of its jurisdiction."

WISCONSIN CHAPTER 753
CIRCUIT COURTS
(1989-1990)

753.03 Jurisdiction of circuit courts. The circuit court have general jurisdiction prescribed for them by article VII of the constitution and have power to issue all writs, process and commissions provided in article VII of the constitution or by the statutes, or which may be necessary to the due execution of the powers vested in them. The circuit courts have power to hear and determine, within their respective circuits, all civil and criminal actions and proceedings unless exclusive jurisdiction is given to some other court; and they have all the power, according to the usages of courts of law and equity, necessary to the full and complete administration of justice, and to carry into effect their judgments, orders and other determinations, subject to review by the court of appeals or the supreme court as provided by law. The courts and the judges thereof have power to award all such writs, process and commissions, throughout the state, returnable in the proper county.

WISCONSIN CHAPTER 968

COMMENCEMENT OF CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS
(1989-1990)

968.01(2) Complaint. The complaint is a written statement of the essential facts constituting the offense charged. A person make a complaint on information and belief. Except as provided in sub. (3), the complaint shall be made upon oath before a district attorney or judge as provided in this chapter.

968.04(1)(a) Warrant or summons on complaint, When an accused has been arrested without a warrant and is in custody or appears voluntarily before a judge, no warrant shall be issued and the complaint shall be filed forthwith with a judge.

WISCONSIN CHAPTER 969

BAIL AND OTHER CONDITIONS OF RELEASE (1989-1990)

969.02(1) Release of defendants charged with misdemeanors. A judge may release a defendant charged with a misdemeanor without bail or may permit him to execute an unsecured appearance bond in an amount specified by the judge.

969.03(1) Release of defendants charged with felonies. A defendant charged with a felony may be release by the judge without bail or upon the execution of an unsecured appearance bond or the judge may in addition to require the execution of an appearance bond or in lieu thereof impose one or more of the following conditions which will assure appearance for trial.

WISCONSIN CHAPTER 970

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE – PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS (1989-1990)

970.01(2) Initial appearance before a judge. When a person is arrested without a warrant and brought before a judge, a complaint shall be filed forthwith.

970.02(1)(a) Duty of a judge at the initial appearance. At the initial appearance the judge shall inform the defendant:

Of the charge against him and shall furnish the defendant with a copy of the complaint which shall contain the possible penalties for the offenses set forth therein. In the case of a felony, the judge shall also inform the defendant of the penalties for the felony with which the defendant is charged.

970.02(2) Duty of a judge at the initial appearance. The judge shall admit the defendant to bail in accordance which ch. 969."

EMERGENCY ROOM REPORT BELONGIA, SHELLY R.

557824

5/29/89

11 year old female, involved in an assault in which she was supposed to be taken over to her grandmother's house by her brother-in-law. When they could not find her grandmother there, they were returning to patient's sister's house so she could spend the night. When the brother-in-law took her to a bridge and, she states, attempted to sexually molest her, getting very close to her, placing his hands on her crotch and on her chest. When he could not get her jumpsuit off easily, apparently aborted his attempt to molest her and decided that he did not want her talking about it, so he took a torn towel and tied her hands together behind her back, told her that she wasn't going to be able to tell anybody about this and proceeded to stop on a bridge overlying a river with several feet of water in it, threw her off the bridge approximately 15-20 feet to the water below. Patient was able to untie her hands and escape. States that she scraped up her leg during the fall, landed primarily on her bottom. Absolutely denies any pain at this time. Seems to be in relatively good spirits. Is able to describe the incident consistently between those interviewers and in relatively good detail. Otherwise, no evidence by history of other problem.

Physical examination show several scratches to the left anterior tibial region. Patient shows good ROM Of all extremities. HEENT exam is unremarkable. Neck is supple. Lungs, cardiac exam, abdomen are all benign. Patient absolutely denies that any actual sexual contact took place.

Assessment: Attempted sexual assault, as well as physical assault with intent to do bodily harm. Patient is relatively injury-free at this time and exceedingly fortunate.

Will have patient discharged only to custody of her mother or suitable guardian, with full instructions that if any problems develop she is to return here right away.

"s/"

G.L. Brown, M.D. /prr

d52989t53189

Kenosha Wisconsin Police Department

CLASS 1710	DATE & TIME	PAGE
CODE 1700	5-29-89	1 of 3

JURISDICTION GRID: 8C
CASE OR EVENTS NO.: 89-47252

COMPLAINANT/REPORTING PERSON – NAME

LAST	FIRST	MI	SEX	RACE	DOB
Belongia	Shelly	R.	F	W	9-10-77

RESIDENCE ADDRESS	CITY	STATE	ZIP
5703 13TH Avenue	Kenosha	Wisc.

CRIME OF INCIDENT	DATE – TIME OCCURRED
Sexual Assault	5-29-89 0330

DESCRIBED LOCATION OF OFFENSE/OR PREMISE
Residence 5703 13th Avenue

SUMMARY OF CRIME OR INCIDENT
Compl reports that she was sexually assaulted by her brother-in-law.

NO CONSENT FORM

I, Shelly Belongia, HAVE GIVEN NO ONE CONSENT SEXUALLY ASSAULT ME IN ANY MANNER

"s/
Sandra Belongia-Mother

WITNESS "s/" SIGNED "s/"

Cindy Cros	Shelly Belongia
REPORTING OFFICER NO.	SUPERVISOR
"s/" #242	"s/"
Cindy Cros Reporting	Lt. M. Bostettia

SUPPLEMENTARY INVESTIGATION REPORT

CASE OR EVENTS NO.	NO. OF PAGES
89-47252	2 OF 3

DATE OF SUPPLEMENTARY REPORT

5-29-89

DATE – TIME REPORT

5-29-891507

S = Glover, Ricardo DOB 1-24-62 WM

4035 Erie St., Racine, Wisc.

Officer spoke with compl Shelly Belongia ref compl of sexual assault. Suspect in compl is victim's brother-in-law Ricardo Glover.

Belongia stated that she was spending the night in Racine at her sister's house. Her sister is married to suspect Glover.

Belongia was awaken at approx 1 am by Glover on this date, and was driven back to Kenosha to her residence by Glover. Nobody was home at Belongia's residence except her grandmother. Belongia was held with a knife against her throat by Glover and was ordered to take her clothes off or she would be killed. She complied and she layed on top of her mother's bed with Glover on top of her naked. Belongia states that intercourse did not occur but Glover ejaculated on the bed sheets. Afterwards he order her dressed and back in the car where they drove back to Racine. They parked on Parkview Dr. and Glover tied Belongia's hands behind her back with a towel. They

REPORTING OFFICER		SUPERVISOR
"s/"	#242	"s/"
Cindy Cros		Lt. M. Bostettia

SUPPLEMENTARY INVESTIGATION REPORT

CASE OR EVENTS NO. NO. OF PAGES

89-47252 3 OF 3

DATE OF SUPPLEMENTARY REPORT

5-29-89

DATE – TIME REPORT

5-29-89 1507

got out and walked to a bridge that is over the Root River. Glover then threw Belongia over the bridge and into the river. Belongia was able to get up because the water was shallow and she got help from a nearby residence. Racine PD responded and took Belongia to St. Luke's Hospital for examination. During the sexual assault, Glover did not kiss or touch Belongia except for his penis touching her leg. Officer obtained a statement from Belongia. Case was turned over to Det. Kopesky. Det. Kopesky took sheets as evidence.

REPORTING OFFICER

"s/" #242

Cindy Cros

SUPERVISOR

"s/"

Lt. M. Bostettia

STATE OF WISC. : CIRCIUT COURT : COUNTY RACINE BRANCH 6

****

STATE OF WISCONSIN,

Plaintiff,

-vs-

RICARDO GLOVER,

Defendant.

*INITIAL APPEARANCE

Case No. 89CF402

****

HONORABLE WAYNE J. MARIK
Judge Presiding

APPEARANCE:

Zoe Stowers, Assistant District Attorney, appearing on behalf of the plaintiff.

Daryl Kastenson, Assistant State Public Defender, appearing on behalf of the defendant who was present in court.

Date of Proceeding:
May 30, 1989

Gayle Leikam
Court Reporter

THE COURT: State versus Ricardo Glover

MS. STOWERS: Zoe Stowers appears for the state.

MR. KASTENSON: Daryl Kastenson on behalf of the defendant who appears in person.

MS. STOWERS: Your Honor, these charges came in today. We've sent it back for further investigation and intend to issue charges tomorrow. There are also potential charges coming out of Kenosha with reference to this incident, and we're going to have to coordinate it with Kenosha.

The allegations are that the defendant allegedly raped his eleven-year-old sister-in-law at knife point—that incident occurred in Kenosha—took her to the riverfront in Racine, tied her hands behind her back, and threw her off the bridge which is approximately eighteen feet from the water into three feet of water, and then fled the scene.

So there are potential attempted murder charges coming out of Racine. I guess we should have a bond review at this time.

THE COURT: All right. As far as the nature or strength of character of the evidence, do you have statements from any persons other than the young lady who's the alleged victim?

MS. STOWERS: We have the statement of the young lady. This is Beth Blackwood's case, and she informed me of what the reports indicated. She arrived at a house, and witnesses observed her hands to be tied behind her back; at that point she was wet.

Other then that, the young girl's statement as to what occurred the defendant does have a criminal record from Muskegon, Michigan, for what's termed as illegal entry. He also gave police a false identification and insisted in this false identification at the time of his arrest.

The state would ask for a minimum of $50,000 cash.

THE COURT: False identification; a false name that was given?

MS. STOWERS: The note I have was false identification.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Kastenson?

MR. KASTENSON: Judge, my client has lived in Racine for six years. His aunt is present in court today who, I believe, is also employed. My client is employed at Ganto Technology (spelled phonetically) in Sturtevent and if released, would not be eligible for our representation. He has other assets that are fairly minimal.

Again, he has lived in Racine six years. He has no record here. He does admit to having a record; he told me he had an illegal entry charge in Michigan in about 1983 about six years ago and lives at 1206 Grand Avenue in Racine.

I'd ask that the Court permit him to sign a signature bond until tomorrow at 2 o'clock with home detention if the Court wants that. He would like to be able to keep his employment obviously. And I think the aunt might be willing to sign the bond, although she has no real property; I think the automobile is the most available.

THE COURT: Other than his aunt, does he have any other relatives of family members in the Racine community?

MRS. GLOVER: Excuse me, your Honor, I'm his wife.

MR. KASTENSON: That's correct. He apparently is separated at this point.

THE DEFENDANT: No. I came from Michigan, yes. And I don't have any type of record. When I had that illegal entry, it was served on me here and I did appear before the Court here. If you want to—I want to get to my job tomorrow before I lose it.

MR. KASTENSON: You referred to somebody coming up to a house?

MS. STOWERS: This was after the incident; an independent witness observed her hands to be tied behind her back.

THE DFENDANT: May I—

THE COURT: Don't say anything about the incident; I suggest you follow your lawyer's advice in that regard, Mr. Glover.

All right. The nature of the potential charge here certainly is extremely aggravated and extremely serious. It does appear that at least the minimum amount of evidence that we have to go on at this point is corroborated by this interested third party, that we're not going solely on the basis of the information provided by the young lady.

I note that Mr. Glover does have some ties to the community which might be termed relatively strong, that he has employment, and has been here for a period of time. But I believe his incentive to flee from the jurisdiction considering the fact that he has some sort of a prior record and is facing rather serious charges here with extremely aggravated potentials would be incentive for him to flee.

I think that something more that a signature bond or a simple co-signed bond is necessary to guarantee that he will, in fact, appear when complaints are filed tomorrow and in further proceedings. If there was someone available, some property to post, the Court would consider it; but that doesn't appear to be a possibility.

Therefore, I am going to set bond in the form of cash bail in the amount of $10,000. I think that that amount, based upon the information that's been provided, is reasonably necessary to guarantee the defendant's appearance. I think that the amount requested by the state is substantial weighted by the evidence before the Court at this time; I think that the other amount is reasonably necessary and adequate to guarantee the defendant's appearance.

The matter will be set for hearing tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 p.m.

(Proceedings concluded.)

* * * *

STATE OF WISCONSIN)
) SS.
COUNTY OF RACINE)

I, Gayle Leikam, Freelance Court Reporter, do hereby certify that I reported the foregoing matter and that the foregoing transcript, consisting of 5 pages, has been carefully compared by me with my stenographic notes as taken by me in machine shorthand and by me thereafter transcribed, and that it is a true and correct transcript of the proceedings had in said matter to the best of my knowledge.

Dated this 18th day of May, 1990.

"s/"
Gayle Leikam, CSR

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT OF LABORATORY FINDINGS

WISCONSIN DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Division of law Enforcement Services

STATE CRIME LABORATORY

1578 South 11th Street

Milwaukee, WI 553204-2860

(414) 649-2440

Submitting Agency: Date: July 31, 1989

[ ] Case No. R89-1453

Chief Karl A. Hansen Agency No. 89-35979

Racine Police Department

730 Center Street

Racine, WI 53403

[ ]

Attn: Jackie Cooper

Laboratory Analyst:

Case Name: "s/"

Belongia, Shelly R. (V) Elaine Canales-Willson

Racine, Racine (Serology)

County, Wisconsin

I do hereby certify this document, consisting of 2 page(s), to be a true and correct report of the findings of the State Crime Laboratory on the items examined as shown by this report.

669

Donald J. Hanaway . Designee"s/" .
ATTORNEY GENERAL SIGNATURE

The following items were submitted for examination by the Serology section:

Item A1:	Vaginal swabs
Item A2:	Cervical swabs
Item A3:	Rectal swabs
Item A4:	Vaginal smears
Item A5:	Cervical smear
Item A6:	Unlabelled smears
Item A7:	Standard saliva sample
Item A8:	Standard head hair
Item A9:	Standard pubic hair
Item A10:	Pubic hair combings
Item B:	Standard blood sample
Item C:	Piece of towel
Item D:	Panties
Item E:	Skirted leggings
Item F:	Hospital pad
Item H:	Black sweatpants
Item J:	Piece of towel
Item K:	Black/white underwear
Item L:	Pink bedsheet

Items A1 through F were reportedly collected from Shelly Belongia.

Items J and L were reportedly recovered from Shelly Belongia's residence.

Items H and K reportedly belong to Ricardo Glover.

1. No semen was detected on the vaginal swabs (Item A1), No sperm were observed during microscopic examination of the vaginal, cervical or unlabeled smears (Items A4, A5 and A6). One sperm was detected in a smear prepared from the cervical swabs (Items A2).

2. Seminal components was detected on the rectal swab. No information regarding the semen source was obtained from typing examination of this swab.

3. No semen was detected on the panties, leggings or bedsheets (Item D, E and L). Two head hairs recovered from Item E were similar in microscopic characteristics to the standard head hairs of Belongia (Item A8). A small bloodstain was detected on the sheet (Item I) but the attempted typing examination was unsuccessful.

4. Item C, a strip of a towel reportedly used as a ligature, and Item J, a part of a towel torn lengthwise, have matching blue and green floral patterns on a white background. The one blonde head hair recovered from Item C was inconsistent with the standard head hairs of Item A8.

5. The one head hair recovered from the hospital examination pad was not consistent in microscopic characteristics with the standard head hairs of Item A8.

6. Seminal stains were detected on the inside from of Glover's sweatpants (Item H) but not the underwear (Item K).

No typing examinations were performed on these stains.

Page 2 "s/"

State Crime Laboratory-Milwaukee case No, R891453

TWO COPIES OF THIS REPORT ARE BEING FURNISHED FOR YOUR TRANSMITTAL TO THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT OF LABORATORY FINDINGS

WISCONSIN DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Division of law Enforcement Services

STATE CRIME LABORATORY

1578 South 11th Street

Milwaukee, WI 553204-2860

(414) 649-2440

Submitting Agency: Date: July 6, 1989

[ ] Case No. R89-1453

Chief Karl A. Hansen Agency No. 89-35979

Racine Police Department

730 Center Street

Racine, WI 53403

[ ]

Attn: Jackie Cooper

Laboratory Analyst:

Case Name: "s/"

Belongia, Shelly R. (V) John P. Nielson

Racine, Racine County (Identification)

Wisconsin

I do hereby certify this document, consisting of 1 page(s), to be a true and correct report of the findings of the State Crime Laboratory on the items examined as shown by this report.

Donald J. Hanaway .Designee"s/" .

ATTORNEY GENERAL SIGNATURE

The following items were received:

Item G: One knife

Item I: Two 1 3/4 oz "Vaseline" jars

Examination of Items G and I revealed no finger or palm prints which were suitable for comparison.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH & SOCIAL SERVICES
Division of Corrections
DOC-14 (Rev. 10/84)

STATE OF WISCONSIN
Wisconsin Statutes
Section 972.13

JUDGMENT OF CONVICTION
SENTENCE TO WISCONSIN STATE PRISONS

STATE OF WISCONSIN, Plaintiff,

v.

STATE OF WISCONSIN, Circuit Court Branch 5

Ricardo Glover, Defendant, County Racine. Jan. 24, 1962 Defendant DOB Court Case No. 89CF402.

The defendant entered his plea no contest:
☐ guilty ☐ not guilty ☒ no contest:
The ☒ Court ☐ Jury found the defendant guilty of:

Crime(s)	Wis. Statute(s) Violation.	Felony or Misdemeanor (F or M).	Class Crime (A-E)	Dates(s) Committed
Ct 1: 1st Sexual Assault	940.225(10(d)	F		5-29-89
Ct 2: False Imp, w/dang. weapon	940.30 & 939.63(1)(a)(4)	F		5-29-89

729